RUSSIANS CAPTURE 108,000 PRISONERS AND STILL ADVANCE

DUFNO LATEST OF VOLHYNIAN FORTRESSES TO BE RETAKEN BY CZAR'S MEN—AUSTRIANS PUT UP STUBBORN DEFENSE, BUT ADMIT REVERSES.

NO INFANTRY FIGHTS AT VERDUN

Italian Cabinet Resigns While Nation's Troops at Last Begin to Make Progress Southeast of Trent—British Successes Reported in German East Africa, Two Towns Being Occupied.

The Associated Press summarizes the war news as follows:

From the wooded region of southwest Russia to the Rumanian frontier the Russians are keeping up their tremendous offensive against the Austro-Hungarians, who have been reinforced on several sectors by Germans.

The advance of the Russians is notable for the large number of prisoners taken and the enormous captures of guns, machine guns and ammunition and other war stores. In the week that has elapsed since they first threw their attacks against the Austrians the Russians report that they have captured approximately 108,000 officers and men and forced back the organized lines of their antagonists in the region of the Volhynian fortress triangle to Rumania.

Having previously captured Lutsk, the Russians now have retaken Dubno, the second of the fortresses in the Volhynian triangle held by the Austrians, and are pressing the retreating Austrians westward. In Galicia and Bukowina progress also has been made by the Russians. The Austrians admit the withdrawal of their forces in northeastern Bukowina.

AUSTRIANS MAKE STUBBORN RESISTANCE.

The Austrians all along the battle front are putting up a stubborn resistance, especially east of Kelki, lying to the north of Lutsk, where they have forced back Russian advanced elements across the Styr river, and in the region of Torgovitsy, on the Styr south of Lutsk, where a sanguinary battle is in progress.

Since Saturday night when three German infantry attacks against the French trenches on Hill 304 and other points in this sector were put down by the French fire, bombardments alone have been in progress in the fighting zone about Verdun. No changes in position have taken place here or at any point on the line in France and Belgium held by the French, British and Belgian troops. The British around Ypres have again been heavily shelled by the Germans.

The Italians claim progress for their troops against the Austrians between the Adige and Brenta rivers southeast of Trent and announced the repulse with heavy losses to the attackers of Austrians endeavoring to capture Monte LeMerle, southwest of Asiago.

ITALIAN CABINET FORCED TO RESIGN.

The Italian cabinet has resigned as a result of the refusal of the chamber of deputies to give a vote of confidence to the government after it had failed to pass the budget of the ministry of the interior.

The British troops in German East Africa have captured the town of Mombo, in the Usambara district, and the town of Bismarckburg, on Lake Tanganyika.

An official British tabulation of German losses up to the end of May gives aggregate casualties of 2,924,586, of which 734,412 represents men killed. These losses are declared to be exclusive of those sustained in naval engagements and the fighting in the colonies.

Roosevelt Insists Out of Politics

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 11.—Theodore Roosevelt reiterated tonight that he is "out of politics."

"I want to tell you newspaper men," he said, "that it's of no use for you to come up here to see me. I will have nothing to say. I will answer no questions, so please do not ask me to. I am out of politics."

If the former president has any plans for the immediate future other than to continue his literary work he has not made them public. His secretary, John W. McGrath, is expected to arrive here tomorrow from Chicago with a detailed report of happenings at both the republican and progressive conventions.

The telegraph wires last night and today brought a flood of messages to Colonel Roosevelt. It was announced that most of them approved his action in declining to become a candidate upon the progressive ticket.

Colonel Roosevelt intimated today he considered it altogether unlikely that he would reconsider his conditional refusal to head a third ticket.

Politics Interests Soldiers.

Field Headquarters in Mexico, by Radio to Columbus, N. M., June 11.—With their present duty largely accomplished, the men of the punitive expedition have turned almost their entire attention of late to national politics. During the Chicago conventions, a bulletin service from the Associated Press kept them in close touch with developments which were keenly watched, particularly the declaration in relation to Mexico.

The Mexican summer is blistering and amusements are few for the expeditionary soldiers. But, however keen their interest in convention news, army discipline keeps them from expressing their opinions.

PRESIDENT WILSON SIGNS RESOLUTION INVITING LATINS TO SAN ANTONIO EXPO

President Wilson signing exposition resolution.

The joint resolution authorizing President Wilson to invite Spain and the Pan-American nations to participate in the Pan-American exposition in San Antonio, Texas, in 1918, was signed by him in the presence of three interested Texans. The exposition will celebrate the 200th anniversary of the founding of San Antonio. The president accepted the invitation of Texans to attend the exposition. Standing at the president's desk, from left to right, are Congressman Garner, Leo R. Sack, a Texas newspaper man, and Senator Morris Sheppard.

Administration Policies Will Be Strongly Endorsed in Democratic Platform

St. Louis, June 11.—Senator William J. Stone, who will be chairman of the resolutions committee which will draft the democratic platform, arrived here tonight with drafts of a number of planks, some of which have been prepared by President Wilson himself. Mr. Stone laid the drafts before Chairman McCombs of the national committee, and held other conferences between party leaders who will be associated in the final preparation of the declaration of principles as it comes before the democratic convention.

All the planks as they now stand are subject, of course, to the action of the resolutions committee, but certain of them which express the sentiments of President Wilson are sure to be incorporated practically as they were brought by Senator Stone.

Generally the object of the platform builders is to be present a concrete record of party achievements, as a platform in themselves, to accept the challenges of the republican platform and to meet the indictments contained in Mr. Hughes' telegram of acceptance of the republican nomination.

The principal planks as they stood tonight when Senator Stone went into conference with Mr. McCombs may be authoritatively outlined as follows:

Foreign Relations.

Pointing out the unprecedented world conditions brought about by the war it will be contended that President Wilson while keeping the United States at peace has maintained a neutrality both "strict and honest." The diplomatic achievements of the president in prevailing upon Germany to pledge herself to cease submarine warfare methods in violation of international law will be pointed out as one of the potent reasons why the democratic administration should be continued in power.

Mexican.

The Mexican situation, presented frankly and fully from the standpoint of the administration will be recited with claims of justification for the administration's course as best shaped to conserve peace with the neighboring republic. The course of the administration will be held to be one in aid of a distracted and distressed people, torn by internal strife in the progress of their own destiny. The United States as the next friend of Mexico, it will be contended, has been acting entirely disinterestedly in Mexico's aid and with full consideration for her sovereignty.

Preparedness.

This will be treated under two separate heads, one dealing with what already has been accomplished and the other with that which is in the making. It will be pointed out that the party has met new world conditions demanding preparedness for national defense by pointing to the advanced stage of preparedness of the navy, both in ships and men; legislation already enacted for the enlargement of the naval academy and administration plans for rapid and balanced enlargement of the nation's forces for defense at sea. It will be contended that more has been done during three years of democratic administration than had been accomplished for many preceding years under republican rule. The enlargement of the regular army and the re-organization of the national guard with provisions bringing it more thoroughly under federal control will be cited among the measures of achievement for national defense already accomplished.

Financial.

The federal reserve act re-organizing the currency system of the country on a basis calculated to provide for the expansion and contraction of currency to meet the fluctuating courses of trade and to bulwark the financial structure of the nation against times of panic will be pointed out as one of the foremost achievements of the party and an act which the republicans unsuccessfully dealt with for many years. Pending legislation for a system of rural credits also will be cited in that connection.

Tariff.

The reduction of tariff duties on a scale which the democratic platform makers contend would be a normal income for the support of the government in normal times will be pointed out as a party achievement. The enactment of an income tax will be presented as one of the party measures to bring income to the support of the government, while dividing the burden according to the ability of the individual to bear it; the creation of a tariff commission for scientific study and readjustment of duties to protect American industry against the flood of European products after the fighting millions turn to the pursuit of peace; the shipping bill now pending to create an American merchant marine to relieve the commerce of the country of the lack of ocean transportation and still making provision to withdraw government operation from competition with private capital when the latter is ready to undertake the enterprise also will be presented as reasons for continuing the party in power.

The platform will contend that legislation at home and diplomatic dealings abroad have lent a strong stimulus to American foreign trade and that as a result industrial prosperity has greatly been enhanced and foreign trade established on a firmer basis than ever before.

The platform will charge that the republican platform is little more than an attack upon the democratic achievements offering no constructive policy to take the place of the measures assailed. For that reason I will appeal for popular support for the democratic administration.

Senator Stone, because of his position as chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, is generally accepted as speaking with the authority of the president on those phases of the platform. It was declared tonight that no complete platform draft had been made. Besides the planks framed by President Wilson many have been submitted by administration leaders in congress and others throughout the country interested in the success of the party. Some may be added as the result of the deliberations of the resolutions committee or the convention, but substantially the main features of the platform are practically certain to be as outlined in the foregoing.

Five Men Considered as Managers of G. O. P. Campaign

Chicago June 11.—Five names were mentioned as possible candidates as chairman of the republican national committee and manager of the Hughes and Fairbanks campaign in the political discussions of the subject by republican leaders here today prior to their leaving for their homes.

The names mentioned were Frank H. Hitchcock of New York; Ralph E. Williams of Oregon; Joseph B. Kealing of Indiana; Fred C. Tanner of New York, and Charles B. Warren of Michigan.

Henry Allen of Kansas, one of the leaders at the progressive national convention, today declared he would support Hughes. He asserted Hughes and Fairbanks would carry Kansas and win in November. He had a conference with Frank H. Hitchcock and a number of Roosevelt delegates to the republican national convention also called on Mr. Hitchcock to pledge their support.

It is estimated that the visitors to the republican, progressive and woman's party national conventions expended $1,365,000 in Chicago last week, more by several hundred dollars than expended by visitors in any previous convention week in the city's history.

No Change in Orders.

Washington, June 11.—Secretary Baker said tonight that there had been no change in General Funston's orders to pursue into Mexico any hot trail left by raiders and that he presumed that the border commander was taking whatever steps were necessary to deal with the situation at San Samuel. As the war department was closing for the night, the secretary said no official dispatches dealing with the reported raid had been received.

Women on Hand to Wage Hard Fight for Suffrage Plank—Bryan Will Have Trouble in Getting Ideas Before Gathering—Coliseum Being Transformed—Tammany Expected Tuesday

St. Louis, June 11.—Forerunners of the 1,092 delegates who are to nominate President Wilson and Vice President Marshall at the democratic national convention this week, moved into St. Louis with the slogan of "peace, prosperity and preparedness." The convention holds its first session at noon Wednesday.

A contest over six seats from the District of Columbia in the convention will be taken up at a meeting of the democratic national committee tomorrow, when the committee will also decide two contested seats on the national committee, one from Texas and one from the District of Columbia. Thomas B. Love is contesting the seat of William Poindexter of Texas, and four democratic clubs in Washington, D. C., are contesting the selection of John F. Costello as committeeman.

Every one of the delegates to the convention either is instructed for or committed to the renomination of Presidnt Wilson and the vast majority of them, according to many national committeemen, are ready to rename Vice President Marshall. A few votes are expected to be cast for some favorite sons for the vice presidential place, but the party leaders assembling here predict the other names may be withdrawn and that Marshall's renomination, like that of President Wilson, will be made by acclamation.

STONE BRINGS DRAFT OF PLATFORM.

"We are here to ratify the desire of the democratic party," said National Chairman McCombs tonight. "There might be a fight if we could hold the convention in Europe. It's a certainty there will be no fight here. The program is all arranged and there should be no hitch."

Senator William J. Stone of Missouri arrived tonight, bringing with him what was said to be a draft of the party platform, with its main planks sketched in detail by President Wilson. Senator Stone is slated to be chairman of the committee on resolutions and it is understood that he and the members of the committee will put President Wilson's ideas on certain planks in written form and adopt other planks bearing on preparedness and foreign policy just as they have been written by the president.

Senator Stone has had several conferences with President Wilson and as chairman of the senate foreign relations committee has intimate knowledge of President Wilson's views on party policy.

Woman suffragists who led the fight for a suffrage plank in the republican platform, are here ready to wage a similar campaign for a suffrage plank in the democratic platform. Members on the committee from the suffrage states are expected to lend their aid.

SUFFRAGISTS MOVE ON TO ST. LOUIS

WOMEN ARE DISAPPOINTED AT REPUBLICAN PLANK, BUT NOT DISMAYED.

"Golden Lane" Will Greet Delegates on Way to Democratic Convention.

St. Louis, June 11.—Disappointed but not dismayed by their defeat at the republican convention, woman suffragists today began pouring into St. Louis to insist on a full-fledged equal rights plank in the democratic platform.

Regarding their failure to induce the republicans to endorse suffrage by constitutional amendment as a temporary setback, the suffrage leaders insisted that good might come out of the situation. Democratic leaders, they argued, should take action to capture the very large woman vote in the suffrage states.

A declaration for woman suffrage in the democratic platform, suffrage leaders insist, will mean added thousands of votes for President Wilson and the rest of the ticket this fall.

Many political observers predict that inasmuch as the nominations virtually are conceded in this convention, the most interesting fight will center on the suffrage issue. Peace and prohibition, of course, will attract much attention, but if the picturesque appeals to the delegates, as the organizers of the suffrage display planned for the week insist that it must, the two former issues soon will be overshadowed because the domination influence of the question of equal rights.

TWENTY-ONE WOMEN DELEGATES.

The women delegates are two from Wyoming, four from Kansas, California 7, Washington 4, Utah 2, Idaho 1, Colorado 1.

Among this delegation are women prominent in all walks of life, not a few of whom have at least statewide reputations in the business and educational as well as in the social world. In addition there is an optimistic little army working out other details of the campaign, including the various national, state and local committees who will appear before the democratic committee and those who have charge of the "golden lane" demonstration set for Wednesday, the opening day of the convention, which is expected to be as colorful a display as any ever made in this country in behalf of the cause.

GOLDEN LANE TO CONVENTION HALL.

Epitomized, it will be two lines composed of thousands of women ranged along twelve city blocks through which democratic delegates must pass from their headquarters to the convention hall. The title "golden lane" comes from the fact that they will wear suffrage colors, yellow sashes and carry yellow parasols.

The women will stand four feet apart. One camp stool will be provided for every two. The climax of the demonstration will be a tableau at the old Art museum at Nineteenth and Locust streets. "Liberty" posed on a pedestal will be the center of pyramid formation. On one side of her, facing the sun and dressed in gray gowns will be figures representing the eighteen states in which women are partly enfranchised. Another group of a similar number dressed in mourning and with their backs to the sun will represent states in which women are wholly disfranchised. Their heads will be bowed and their faces shrouded black veils. Figures representing full enfranchised states will wear white gowns. Other women in gala costumes will represent voting countries.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National American Woman's Suffrage association, and Miss Alice Paul of the Congressional union, also are here with large corps of workers to aid in urging the cause.

August Convention Expected to Go to Houston

Dallas, Tex., June 11.—Members of the state democratic executive committee are gathering here tonight for the meeting tomorrow, at which it is expected the city will be chosen at which the August convention will be held. While there are several candidates, sentiment among the committeemen on hand seems overwhelmingly in favor of Houston.

MEXICANS RAID RANCH NORTHWEST OF LAREDO BUT DO LITTLE DAMAGE

Eighty Horses Driven Off But Re-Captured, and Two American Cowboys Taken Prisoners But Turned Loose—Troop of Fourteenth Cavalry in Pursuit, But Reported Not to Have Crossed Rio Grande—Luis de La Rosa Said to Have Been With Party.

San Antonio, June 11.—Mexican bandits raided the Coleman ranch, about twenty-five miles northwest of Laredo last night and were driven back across the border today by a troop of the Fourteenth cavalry under Captain Ola W. Bell. The bandits drove off eighty horses, but did no damage to the ranch property.

The raid was reported to headquarters by General Mann at Laredo, who is in charge of the situation. It is expected he will send reinforcements to Captain Bell, who is without pack train or supplies. How far into Mexico he has gone is not known at headquarters. The raid was first reported to General Funston by T. A. Coleman of San Antonio, owner of the ranch, who is in Port Aransas on a fishing trip. Verification came from Captain Bell.

Laredo, June 11.—Fifteen Mexican bandits early today attacked four employes on the T. A. Coleman ranch, at San Manuel, forty miles northwest of Laredo, drove them to the brush, and rode away with eighty-three horses and escaped across the Rio Grande. The same party of Mexicans, it is reported, attacked the Johnson & Coleman place, another ranch in the same vicinity last night. Two American cowboys, George Conover and Arthur Myers, are said to have been captured and taken off in this raid. American soldiers have been sent to the scene.

A report is expected momentarily from the troops sent to pursue the bandits. An unverified report tonight was to the effect that the horses had been re-captured. All that is known here definitely, however, is that American soldiers were sent to the scene of the raid in auto trucks and immediately took up the bandits' trail.

ARMY OFFICERS INFORMED OF RAID.

George R. Alexander, foreman of the Coleman ranch, with three men left the ranch at daybreak today, taking the horses to a pasture at Webb. At 7:30 o'clock, when twelve miles from the Rio Grande, they were suddenly attacked from the rear by Mexicans, who evidently had been following them. The Mexican rifle fire was too much for the ranchers and they were compelled to take to the brush, abandoning the horses, which the bandits made off with.

Alexander hurriedly rode to Minera and reported the incident to army officers here by telephone. Arrangements for the pursuit immediately were begun.

Luis de La Rosa is said to have been with the party which raided the Johnson & Coleman ranch last night. They had rounded up a bunch of horses when discovered. Conover and Myers and a Mexican employe on the ranch, according to report here, stampeded the horses, most of them escaping. Conover and Myers, however, were captured by the bandits and taken across the river. Another unconfirmed report tonight was that Conover and Myers later escaped.

George Conover and Arthur Myers, captured by Mexicans bandits last night, were released and reached Palafox, Texas, late today, unharmed.

Conover and Myers at Palafox tonight said they had not been mistreated by the Mexicans, having been merely held prisoners for a short time. Nothing had been heard at 10 o'clock tonight from the American forces sent to pursue the bandits.

May Not Have Crossed Border.

San Antonio, June 11.—The actual whereabouts of Captain Ola Bell and the troop of cavalry he led against the raiders of the Coleman ranch were not known tonight, and late reports to General Funston indicated that he did not cross the river in pursuit of the Mexicans. Only meagre details of the raids and of the action taken by Captain Bell had reached department headquarters tonight.

Carrancistas and Bandits Fight.

Laredo, Tex., June 11.—Carranza troops and Mexican bandits engaged in a battle today at Sanchez, Mexico, twenty miles south of Nuevo Laredo, according to reports received here tonight, which resulted in the capture of four bandit leaders. The outlaws, it is said, were a part of Luis De La Rosa's band.

Two armed Japanese were arrested near Piedras Negras today by de facto troops charged with being identified with bandits.

Incoming trains from Mexico today continued to bring Americans and other foreigners to the border. The refugees said they were leaving the country owing to serious political conditions.

Twelve Killed in Wreck.

Saltillo, Mex., June 11.—Twelve persons were instantly killed and ten Carranza soldiers seriously injured near here last Thursday night when a military train conveying Gen. Luis Gutierrez to Saltillo left the track on a curve, the locomotive and three coaches turning over. The dead are ten soldiers and the engineer and fireman. A defective rail is given as the cause of the wreck. General Gutierrez suffered only slight bruises.

Villistas Scattered.

Chihuahua City, Mex., June 11.—A decisive victory over the 600 Villistas who had concentrated in the Rio Florido district about fifty miles south of Parral, was reported to military headquarters here today by General Ignacio Ramos.

Only meagre details of the engagement were contained in the reports which said that a battle was fought in the Lomas de Buena Vista yesterday which lasted from daylight until darkness and finally resulted in the bandits fleeing before the Carrancistas soldiers.

Chihuahua Conditions Cause Uneasiness

El Paso, Texas, June 11.—Uneasiness as to the result of the anti-American agitation in Chihuahua was manifested in almost every quarter here and in Juarez tonight. Especial anxiety was expressed for the dozen Americans remaining in Chihuahua City where a mass meeting of all male natives was scheduled for today, ostensibly to protest against the American troops remaining in Mexico. A number of American refugees arriving from Chihuahua City today said that they were hooted by Mexicans at almost every station on the way to the border.

Apparently communications from the interior over the Mexican telegraph lines have been more closely censored in the last few days than for some weeks, only military dispatches and a few meagre obviously censored press messages being received in Juarez today. None of these made any mention of the scheduled demonstration, but persons familiar with conditions in the city expressed a belief that a crisis would be reached at the meeting.

Supporting this belief was a strong story brought to the border by Mrs. Augustine Labansat, wife of the Carranza commander at San Luis Potosi, who asserted that Gen. Jacinto Trevino, commander at Chihuahua City, had said that while he had the masses of the people well under control their temper was such that the time seemed approaching when he could no longer guarantee protection to Americans.

A Carrancista guard of twelve men has been thrown about the American consulate in the city as a protective measure, she said.

Five Mexicans who crossed the Rio Grande to El Paso firing their pistols caused some alarm in the south section of the city late today, but the Mexicans, apparently intoxicated, recrossed the river almost immediately.

Carranza Troops Had Been Sent to Attack Sibely Is Learned Now at San Antonio

San Antonio, Texas, June 11.—What is regarded by American army officers as official repudiation of the agreement entered into by Generals Pershing and Gavira was contained in a curt message from Gen. Jacinto Trevino to General Pershing, informing him that General Gavira had no authority to discuss military subjects with him. General Pershing sent a copy of General Trevino's message to department headquarters here.

The agreement between Generals Pershing and Gavira had to do with disposition of troops in the territory controlled by the American punitive expedition and was intended as a precaution that might prevent unauthorized clashes. It in no way affected the more important phases of the situation.

General Gavira was ordered to Mexico City about the time General Trevino sent his message to General Pershing.

Official advices have been received by General Funston that General Trevino has asked consular officers at Chihuahua to supply him a list of their nationals other than Americans, explaining that he wishes to know them in order to afford them protection; that he would be glad to accord protection to Americans as well, but that in view of the increasing antagonism by Mexicans he regarded it as practically impossible to do so.

It became known today that only the withdrawal of Colonel Sibley's force that entered Mexico after the raid at Glenn Springs prevented its attack by Carranza troops. Army officers here have learned that a force of 1,000 troops had been sent northward with orders from the governor of Coahuila to get in contact with the American troops and force them out of Mexico.

It will be pointed out that the party has met new world conditions demanding preparedness for national defense by pointing to the advanced stage of preparedness of the navy, both in ships and men; legislation already enacted for the enlargement of the naval academy and administration plans for rapid and balanced enlargement of the nation's forces for defense at sea. It will be contended that more has been done during three years of democratic administration than had been accomplished for many preceding years under republican rule. The enlargement of the regular army and the re-organization of the national guard with provisions bringing it more thoroughly under federal control will be cited among the measures of achievement for national defense already accomplished.

Financial.

The federal reserve act re-organizing the currency system of the country on a basis calculated to provide for the expansion and contraction of currency to meet the fluctuating courses of trade and to bulwark the financial structure of the nation against times of panic will be pointed out as one of the foremost achievements of the party and an act which the republicans unsuccessfully dealt with for many years. Pending legislation for a system of rural credits also will be cited in that connection.

Tariff.

The reduction of tariff duties on a scale which the democratic platform makers contend would be a normal income for the support of the government in normal times will be pointed out as a party achievement. The enactment of an income tax will be presented as one of the party measures to bring income to the support of the government, while dividing the burden according to the ability of the individual to bear it; the creation of a tariff commission for scientific study and readjustment of duties to protect American industry against the flood of European products after the fighting millions turn to the pursuit of peace; the shipping bill now pending to create an American merchant marine to relieve the commerce of the country of the lack of ocean transportation and still making provision to withdraw government operation from competition with private capital when the latter is ready to undertake the enterprise also will be presented as reasons for continuing the party in power.

The platform will contend that legislation at home and diplomatic dealings abroad have lent a strong stimulus to American foreign trade and that as a result industrial prosperity has greatly been enhanced and foreign trade established on a firmer basis than ever before.

The platform will charge that the republican platform is little more than an attack upon the democratic achievements offering no constructive policy to take the place of the measures assailed. For that reason I will appeal for popular support for the democratic administration.

Senator Stone, because of his position as chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, is generally accepted as speaking with the authority of the president on those phases of the platform. It was declared tonight that no complete platform draft had been made. Besides the planks framed by President Wilson many have been submitted by administration leaders in congress and others throughout the country interested in the success of the party. Some may be added as the result of the deliberations of the resolutions committee or the convention, but substantially the main features of the platform are practically certain to be as outlined in the foregoing.

Five Men Considered as Managers of G. O. P. Campaign

Chicago June 11.—Five names were mentioned as possible candidates as chairman of the republican national committee and manager of the Hughes and Fairbanks campaign in the political discussions of the subject by republican leaders here today prior to their leaving for their homes.

The names mentioned were Frank H. Hitchcock of New York; Ralph E. Williams of Oregon; Joseph B. Kealing of Indiana; Fred C. Tanner of New York, and Charles B. Warren of Michigan.

Henry Allen of Kansas, one of the leaders at the progressive national convention, today declared he would support Hughes. He asserted Hughes and Fairbanks would carry Kansas and win in November. He had a conference with Frank H. Hitchcock and a number of Roosevelt delegates to the republican national convention also called on Mr. Hitchcock to pledge their support.

It is estimated that the visitors to the republican, progressive and woman's party national conventions expended $1,365,000 in Chicago last week, more by several hundred dollars than expended by visitors in any previous convention week in the city's history.

No Change in Orders.

Washington, June 11.—Secretary Baker said tonight that there had been no change in General Funston's orders to pursue into Mexico any hot trail left by raiders and that he presumed that the border commander was taking whatever steps were necessary to deal with the situation at San Samuel. As the war department was closing for the night, the secretary said no official dispatches dealing with the reported raid had been received.

DEMOCRAT VANGUARD REACHES ST. LOUIS: EVERYBODY IS HAPPY

DELEGATES WHO WILL NOMINATE WILSON AND MARSHALL THIS WEEK BRING SLOGAN OF "PEACE, PROSPERITY AND PREPAREDNESS."

TEXAS CONTEST COMES UP TODAY

Women on Hand to Wage Hard Fight for Suffrage Plank—Bryan Will Have Trouble in Getting Ideas Before Gathering—Coliseum Being Transformed—Tammany Expected Tuesday

St. Louis, June 11.—Forerunners of the 1,092 delegates who are to nominate President Wilson and Vice President Marshall at the democratic national convention this week, moved into St. Louis with the slogan of "peace, prosperity and preparedness." The convention holds its first session at noon Wednesday.

A contest over six seats from the District of Columbia in the convention will be taken up at a meeting of the democratic national committee tomorrow, when the committee will also decide two contested seats on the national committee, one from Texas and one from the District of Columbia. Thomas B. Love is contesting the seat of William Poindexter of Texas, and four democratic clubs in Washington, D. C., are contesting the selection of John F. Costello as committeeman.

Every one of the delegates to the convention either is instructed for or committed to the renomination of President Wilson and the vast majority of them, according to many national committeemen, are ready to rename Vice President Marshall. A few votes are expected to be cast for some favorite sons for the vice presidential place, but the party leaders assembling here predict the other names may be withdrawn and that Marshall's renomination, like that of President Wilson, will be made by acclamation.

STONE BRINGS DRAFT OF PLATFORM.

"We are here to ratify the desire of the democratic party," said National Chairman McCombs tonight. "There might be a fight if we could hold the convention in Europe. It's a certainty there will be no fight here. The program is all arranged and there should be no hitch."

Senator William J. Stone of Missouri arrived tonight bringing with him what was said to be a draft of the party platform, with its main planks sketched in detail by President Wilson. Senator Stone is slated to be chairman of the committee on resolutions and it is understood that he and the members of the committee will put President Wilson's ideas on certain planks in written form and adopt other planks bearing on preparedness and foreign policy just as they have been written by the president.

Senator Stone has had several conferences with President Wilson and as chairman of the senate foreign relations committee has intimate knowledge of President Wilson's views on party policy.

Woman suffragists who led the fight for a suffrage plank in the republican platform, are here ready to wage a similar campaign for a suffrage plank in the democratic platform. Members on the committee from the suffrage states are expected to lend their aid.

SUFFRAGISTS MOVE ON TO ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, June 11.—Disappointed but not dismayed by their defeat at the republican convention, woman suffragists today began pouring into St. Louis to insist on a full-fledged equal rights plank in the democratic platform.

Regarding their failure to induce the republicans to endorse suffrage by constitutional amendment as a temporary setback, the suffrage leaders insisted that good might come out of the situation. Democratic leaders, they argued, should take action to capture the very large woman vote in the suffrage states.

A declaration for woman suffrage in the democratic platform, suffrage leaders insist, will mean added thousands of votes for President Wilson and the rest of the ticket this fall.

Many political observers predict that inasmuch as the nominations virtually are conceded in this convention, the most interesting fight will center on the suffrage issue. Peace and prohibition, of course, will attract much attention, but if the picturesque appeals to the delegates, as the organizers of the suffrage display planned for the week insist that it must, the two former issues soon will be overshadowed because the domination influence of the question of equal rights.

TWENTY-ONE WOMEN DELEGATES.

The women delegates are two from Wyoming, four from Kansas, California 7, Washington 4, Utah 2, Idaho 1, Colorado 1.

Among this delegation are women prominent in all walks of life, not a few of whom have at least statewide reputations in the business and educational as well as in the social world. In addition there is an optimistic little army working out other details of the campaign, including the various national, state and local committees who will appear before the democratic committee and those who have charge of the "golden lane" demonstration set for Wednesday, the opening day of the convention, which is expected to be as colorful a display as any ever made in this country in behalf of the cause.

GOLDEN LANE TO CONVENTION HALL.

Epitomized, it will be two lines composed of thousands of women ranged along twelve city blocks through which democratic delegates must pass from their headquarters to the convention hall. The title "golden lane" comes from the fact that they will wear suffrage colors, yellow sashes and carry yellow parasols.

The women will stand four feet apart. One camp stool will be provided for every two. The climax of the demonstration will be a tableau at the old Art museum at Nineteenth and Locust streets. "Liberty" posed on a pedestal will be the center of pyramid formation. On one side of her, facing the sun and dressed in gray gowns will be figures representing the eighteen states in which women are partly enfranchised. Another group of a similar number dressed in mourning and with their backs to the sun will represent states in which women are wholly disfranchised. Their heads will be bowed and their faces shrouded black veils. Figures representing full enfranchised states will wear white gowns. Other women in gala costumes will represent voting countries.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National American Woman's Suffrage association, and Miss Alice Paul of the Congressional union, also are here with large corps of workers to aid in urging the cause.

August Convention Expected to Go to Houston

Dallas, Tex., June 11.—Members of the state democratic executive committee are gathering here tonight for the meeting tomorrow, at which it is expected the city will be chosen at which the August convention will be held. While there are several candidates, sentiment among the committeemen on hand seems overwhelmingly in favor of Houston.

MEXICANS RAID RANCH NORTHWEST OF LAREDO BUT DO LITTLE DAMAGE

Eighty Horses Driven Off But Re-Captured, and Two American Cowboys Taken Prisoners But Turned Loose—Troop of Fourteenth Cavalry in Pursuit, But Reported Not to Have Crossed Rio Grande—Luis de La Rosa Said to Have Been With Party.

San Antonio, June 11.—Mexican bandits raided the Coleman ranch, about twenty-five miles northwest of Laredo last night and were driven back across the border today by a troop of the Fourteenth cavalry under Captain Ola W. Bell. The bandits drove off eighty horses, but did no damage to the ranch property.

The raid was reported to headquarters by General Mann at Laredo, who is in charge of the situation. It is expected he will send reinforcements to Captain Bell, who is without pack train or supplies. How far into Mexico he has gone is not known at headquarters. The raid was first reported to General Funston by T. A. Coleman of San Antonio, owner of the ranch, who is in Port Aransas on a fishing trip. Verification came from Captain Bell.

Laredo, June 11.—Fifteen Mexican bandits early today attacked four employes on the T. A. Coleman ranch, at San Mamuel, forty miles northwest of Laredo, drove them to the brush, and rode away with eighty-three horses and escaped across the Rio Grande. The same party of Mexicans, it is reported, attacked the Johnson & Coleman place, another ranch in the same vicinity last night. Two American cowboys, George Conover and Arthur Myers, are said to have been captured and taken off in this raid. American soldiers have been sent to the scene.

A report is expected momentarily from the troops sent to pursue the bandits. An unverified report tonight was to the effect that the horses had been re-captured. All that is known here definitely, however, is that American soldiers were sent to the scene of the raid in auto trucks and immediately took up the bandits' trail.

ARMY OFFICERS INFORMED OF RAID.

George R. Alexander, foreman of the Coleman ranch, with three men left the ranch at daybreak today, taking the horses to a pasture at Webb. At 7:30 o'clock, when twelve miles from the Rio Grande, they were suddenly attacked from the rear by Mexicans, who evidently had been following them. The Mexican rifle fire was too much for the ranchers and they were compelled to take to the brush, abandoning the horses, which the bandits made off with.

Alexander hurriedly rode to Minera and reported the incident to army officers here by telephone. Arrangements for the pursuit immediately were begun.

Luis de La Rosa is said to have been with the party which raided the Johnson & Coleman ranch last night. They had rounded up a bunch of horses when discovered. Conover and Myers and a Mexican employe on the ranch, according to report here, stampeded the horses, most of them escaping. Conover and Myers, however, were captured by the bandits and taken across the river. Another unconfirmed report tonight was that Conover and Myers later escaped.

George Conover and Arthur Myers, captured by Mexicans bandits last night, were released and reached Palafox, Texas, late today, unharmed.

Conover and Myers at Palafox tonight said they had not been mistreated by the Mexicans, having been merely held prisoners for a short time. Nothing had been heard at 10 o'clock tonight from the American forces sent to pursue the bandits.

May Not Have Crossed Border.

San Antonio, June 11.—The actual whereabouts of Captain Ola Bell and the troop of cavalry he led against the raiders of the Coleman ranch were not known tonight, and late reports to General Funston indicated that he did not cross the river in pursuit of the Mexicans. Only meagre details of the raids and of the action taken by Captain Bell had reached department headquarters tonight.

Carrancistas and Bandits Fight.

Laredo, Tex., June 11.—Carranza troops and Mexican bandits engaged in a battle today at Sanchez, Mexico, twenty miles south of Nuevo Laredo, according to reports received here tonight, which resulted in the capture of four bandit leaders. The outlaws, it is said, were a part of Luis De La Rosa's band.

Two armed Japanese were arrested near Piedras Negras today by de facto troops charged with being identified with bandits.

Incoming trains from Mexico today continued to bring Americans and other foreigners to the border. The refugees said they were leaving the country owing to serious political conditions.

Twelve Killed in Wreck.

Saltillo, Mex., June 11.—Twelve persons were instantly killed and ten Carranza soldiers seriously injured near here last Thursday night when a military train conveying Gen. Luis Gutierrez to Saltillo left the track on a curve, the locomotive and three coaches turning over. The dead are ten soldiers and the engineer and fireman. A defective rail is given as the cause of the wreck. General Gutierrez suffered only slight bruises.

Villistas Scattered.

Chihuahua City, Mex., June 11.—A decisive victory over the 600 Villistas who had concentrated in the Rio Florido district about fifty miles south of Parral, was reported to military headquarters here today by General Ignacio Ramos.

Only meagre details of the engagement were contained in the reports which said that a battle was fought in the Lomas de Buena Vista yesterday which lasted from daylight until darkness and finally resulted in the bandits fleeing before the Carrancistas soldiers.

Chihuahua Conditions Cause Uneasiness

El Paso, Texas, June 11.—Uneasiness as to the result of the anti-American agitation in Chihuahua was manifested in almost every quarter here and in Juarez tonight. Especial anxiety was expressed for the dozen Americans remaining in Chihuahua City where a mass meeting of all male natives was scheduled for today, ostensibly to protest against the American troops remaining in Mexico. A number of American refugees arriving from Chihuahua City today said that they were hooted by Mexicans at almost every station on the way to the border.

Apparently communications from the interior over the Mexican telegraph lines have been more closely censored in the last few days than for some weeks, only military dispatches and a few meagre obviously censored press messages being received in Juarez today. None of these made any mention of the scheduled demonstration, but persons familiar with conditions in the city expressed a belief that a crisis would be reached at the meeting.

Supporting this belief was a strong story brought to the border by Mrs. Augustine Labansat, wife of the Carranza commander at San Luis Potosi, who asserted that Gen. Jacinto Trevino, commander at Chihuahua City, had said that while he had the masses of the people well under control their temper was such that the time seemed approaching when he could no longer guarantee protection to Americans.

A Carrancista guard of twelve men has been thrown about the American consulate in the city as a protective measure, she said.

Five Mexicans who crossed the Rio Grande to El Paso firing their pistols caused some alarm in the south section of the city late today, but the Mexicans, apparently intoxicated, recrossed the river almost immediately.

Carranza Troops Had Been Sent to Attack Sibely Is Learned Now at San Antonio

San Antonio, Texas, June 11.—What is regarded by American army officers as official repudiation of the agreement entered into by Generals Pershing and Gavira was contained in a curt message from Gen. Jacinto Trevino to General Pershing, informing him that General Gavira had no authority to discuss military subjects with him. General Pershing sent a copy of General Trevino's message to department headquarters here.

The agreement between Generals Pershing and Gavira had to do with disposition of troops in the territory controlled by the American punitive expedition and was intended as a precaution that might prevent unauthorized clashes. It in no way affected the more important phases of the situation.

General Gavira was ordered to Mexico City about the time General Trevino sent his message to General Pershing.

Official advices have been received by General Funston that General Trevino has asked consular officers at Chihuahua to supply him a list of their nationals other than Americans, explaining that he wishes to know them in order to afford them protection; that he would be glad to accord protection to Americans as well, but that in view of the increasing antagonism by Mexicans he regarded it as practically impossible to do so.

It became known today that only the withdrawal of Colonel Sibley's force that entered Mexico after the raid at Glenn Springs prevented its attack by Carranza troops. Army officers here have learned that a force of 1,000 troops had been sent northward with orders from the governor of Coahuila to get in contact with the American troops and force them out of Mexico.

INSPIRING REVIVAL SERVICES IN MARLIN

BOB LEWIS, A SUCCESSFUL LAWYER FROM PARIS, TELLS OF CONVERSION.

Judge H. B. Porter to Preside Over District Court This Week, Relieving Judge Munroe.

Marlin, June 11.—The feature of the day's services in Marlin were the revival services being conducted at the first Methodist church by Evangelist W. M. McIntosh of Iuka, Miss.

During the afternoon Bob Lewis, a recently converted lawyer of Paris, Texas, at a special "men's only" meeting, made a stirring address in which he told of his life and of his remarkable conversion about one year ago during a meeting in Paris by Evangelist McIntosh.

At night the large auditorium was filled with people, the Baptists and Presbyterians joining in the services.

Rev. Frank Boyles, who entered the ministry while county attorney of Falls county some years ago, has returned to Marlin to live during his recovery from illness which caused him to resign the pastorate of the First Methodist church in Houston some months ago.

Judge H. B. Porter of Hillsboro will preside over district court in Marlin this week, having exchanged places for the week with District Judge Richard I. Munroe, who went to Hillsboro.

Warren W. Hunt, official court stenographer, returned from Waco this morning, where he went Saturday to hear Governor Ferguson make his speech.

Rev. Whitehurst at Mt. Calm.

Mt. Calm, June 11.—Presiding Elder J. A. Whitehurst preached at the Methodist church today and this evening and will hold a quarterly conference tomorrow. Dr. Whitehurst is a pleasing speaker and his hearers were greatly edified by his two addresses.

INTERPRETER FOR THE FORD MOTOR CO.

Had Spent Six Hundred Dollars Trying to Cure His Stomach Trouble

It has been estimated that there are at least five million adults in the United States upon whom dangerous diseases are working without the knowledge of the victim. It is a matter of record that 90 per cent of the hundreds of people rejected last year by one of the largest insurance companies on account of disease directly traceable to the stomach, liver and kidneys were unaware of their danger until the examining physician informed them of it. To these people the new herbal system tonic, Plant Juice, is like a ray of hope. It is a modern remedy for modern ills caused by the rush and hustle of the times, and is the best tonic to be found for all ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood.

Only recently the following testimonial was received from Mr. Joseph Korolishin, who resides at 201 Plumer avenue, Detroit, Mich., and is well known, being interpreter for the Ford Motor Car company. He says:

"I had been sick for a long time with stomach, liver and kidney trouble and had spent over six hundred dollars in money on different remedies and treatments, and I was left in a worse condition than I was before. I had been reading in the Detroit papers about Plant Juice and decided to try it. After I had used only about half a bottle my stomach started to improve. I have only used one bottle and my health is so good that I can't praise Plant Juice too highly."

leaders of the movement to direct the fight. Democratic national committeemen say there are indications that the party will take a position on suffrage similar to that of the republicans—that is, a declaration in principle for suffrage but leaving it a matter for the states to determine.

There were unconfirmed reports tonight that William J. Bryan, though not a delegate, would find some way to precipitate a fight on the preparedness plank, but none of his friends here were in a position to say how he might touch on the issue in a convention in which he is not a delegate.

Mr. Bryan will only be able to address the convention with the unanimous consent of its 1,092 delegates and he may not occupy a seat on the floor of the convention unless both a delegate and his alternate retire and give him their proxy.

GETTING COLISEUM READY FOR MEETING.

Work on preparations of the convention hall is being rushed and the national committee is confident it will be ready for the first session. Day and night, carpenters and decorators are at work transforming the coliseum into a convention hall. Nearly 12,000 seats have been provided for delegates, alternates, press, guests and spectators and the demand for tickets has far outrun the supply. The national committee has threatened with arrest any one found speculating in tickets to the convention. A local committee which subscribed heavily to the fund that brought the convention to St. Louis has set a price of $50 for a ticket for the week.

Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, with several members of the New York delegation, was expected here late tonight. The main body of the New York delegation and Tammany men numbering nearly 1,000, are expected here on special trains Tuesday. Tammany is sending the largest contingent of any state. The New York men are especially interested in the keynote speech to be delivered by former Governor Martin J. Glynn of New York, as temporary chairman of the convention. He and Senator Ollie James of Kentucky, who is to be permanent chairman, are expected tomorrow.

Alumni Meet at A. and M. Today

College Station, Tex., June 11.—Monday will be alumni day at the A. and M. college. Present indications at that 300 ore more former students and graduates of the institution will attend the festivities given in their honor Monday. The program for tomorrow includes the parade representing the work and equipment of the various departments which will be held at 9 o'clock, annual business meeting of the alumni association at 2 o'cock, inspection of departments, drills honoring the alumni and a barbecue tomorrow night at a nearby park.

The commencement exercises proper opened this morning with the commencement sermon by Dr. George S. Sexton, pastor of the First Methodist church at Shreveport, La.

LIBRARY HAS BOOKS ON TRAVEL IN U.S.

For the prospective summer tourist, the books listed below on the "beauty spots" of our own country will prove most interesting and helpful. These may be borrowed from the public library for two weeks with the privilege of renewal for two weeks more. The library is located at the corner of Twelfth and Austin streets and is free to all.

"We Discover New England," by Louise Closser Hale. Drawings by Walter Hale. A lively, diverting narrative of a motor trip taken by the writer and the illustrator, from New York through the Berkshires to Lake Champlain, east to the White Mountains and down the coast from Portland, Maine, to the Sound.

"Highways and Byways from the St. Lawrence to Virginia," by Clifton Johnson. Entertaining, conversational chapters on town and country regions of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, with a chapter on Washington and vicinity. Notes for tourists at the end of each chapter, and forty-eight illustrations from photographs.

"Through the Grand Canyon from Wyoming to Mexico," by E. L. Kolb. Story of a perilous rowboat trip taken by the author, accompanied by his brother. He was not the first to attempt the journey nor to describe it, but was the first to attempt to take moving pictures on the trip.

"A Guidebook to Colorado," by Eugene Parsons. A handbook, dealing with the state by counties. The history, area, special features, etc., of each are given, with information on motor and railway routes, railway rates and hotel prices.

"The Spell of the Rockies," by Enos A. Mills. A record of long tramps over glaciers, perilous climbs over crags and peaks and hairbreadth escapes from avalanches and forest fires. Studies of the beaver, coyote and other animals are entertainingly given. Will be popular with boys as well as adults.

"The Tourist's California," by Ruth K. Wood. Following a chapter of general information are others on hotels and restaurants, theatres and sports, and descriptions of trips to San Francisco, Sacramento, the Upper Coast Region, the Yosemite, the mission country and elsewhere throughout the state.

"Guidebooks of the Western United States." Four volumes. A series of valuable guidebooks which cover the four older railroad routes west of the Mississippi. Though the geological interest is uppermost, there is enough of geography, history, description of routes, scenic features and resources to make them of exceptional value to traveler or homeseeker. The railway routes treated are: The overland route, with a side trip to Yellowstone National park; the Shasta route and coast line; the Santa Fe route, with a side trip to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado; the Northern Pacific route, with a side trip to the Yellowstone National park.

"Roughing It De Luxe," by Irvin S. Cobb. Mr. Cobb traveled to California by the southern route and stopped off by way to see the Grand Canyon. He writes about it here, and adds later chapters on the California climate, San Francisco and the vanishing Indian. While Mr. Cobb saw the same things that many others see on the same trip, he imparts a charm to them by his inimitable style.

Candidate Makes Impression in Hico

Hico, Tex., June 11.—J. E. Porter of Waco, candidate for congress at large, and his aviator, Russell North, with the Williams Aviation company of Frenton, Mich., drew a very large crowd at this place yesterday afternoon.

Mr. North flew here from Dublin via Carlton, a distance of twenty-six miles, in twenty-eight minutes. He made two successful flights here going over the city.

Mr. Porter spoke for quite a while to a large and appreciative audience, setting forth his platform. He made a fine impression and no doubt but that he will get a big vote at this place.

JACKSONVILLE'S TOMATOES.

That Point Will Ship an Unusually Large Number of Cars.

F. B. McKay, general freight and passenger agent of the Texas Midland, is at Jacksonville, Texas, where he will remain for some time looking after the shipments of tomatoes over his road.

"We are expecting to handle something like 500 cars this season," said Mr. McKay before leaving. "The crop is all that could be asked for, and the Midland gets a large share of the business.

"Jacksonville is in an ideal section for truck farming. It is the region of small farms, no absentee landlordism being known. The people are prosperous and indications are that this sort of farming will be conducted in the future on a scale greater than ever before."

The potato crop this year was not a success, but the Elberta shipment will supplement the tomato movement within a few weeks.

Diary of County Jail Prisoner Declares that to do Right Is the Rule for Man to Live by

After seven months in the McLennan county jail Mike Kohl has "seen the light."

"The light," as Mike explained it, "is the determination that Truth is the only thing that counts and that a man ought to live up to his conscience"—the devil and a man's natural tendencies notwithstanding.

Mike is a railroad fireman—or rather he was. He was sentenced last year with several other railroad employes in connection with boxcar robberies. Despite his long confinement, Mike came out healthy, and being a well built man and having gotten things "settled inside," as he put it, there was a good natured smile on his face—a kind of smile that comes with achievement.

"You see I had always tried to lead a pretty good life, but I never had quite come to myself. A fellow has lot of time to think when he is in jail and he sees some of the bad part of other fellows sorter turned wrong-side out. I saw that a man must live right—absolutely right. That's the only way to live."

When asked about his jail experience, Mr. Kohl said "he appreciated it." The food, he said, was such that a fellow could live on it. If it were any better, he was afraid that the jail would be peopled with men who would be perfectly satisfied to remain there "with something to eat and nothing to do." When first put in, he declared that it was a very disheartening experience, that black lines swam before his eyes and he felt the depressing sense of melancholia.

Later he began to take an interest in "jail life," the song services, midweek prayer meetings and the Sunday services and to enter into the spirit of jail fraternity. When he left last week, he made a farewell talk to the inmates and they gave him a good-by cheer. He expressed sincere appreciation of the jailor's son, the Baylor boys and to "Mother" Winfrey and to others, who he declares do a great deal of good not only keeping the the prisoners from growing despondent, but by conducting the services, arouse many of the inmates to a better life.

A term in jail will bring out the best or the worst in a man, said the released prisoner, who had spent seven months there.

When Mike came in the News office to have a talk with the reporter he brought his smile and a little thumb-marked book. In this little book he had written some of his experiences and impressions while in jail. Although he has a speaking knowledge of some four languages, his written English is elementary, but despite his spelling, he makes his ideas clear.

Excerpts of this little human interest document are given below as they were written:

INSPIRING REVIVAL SERVICES IN MARLIN

Judge H. B. Porter to Preside Over District Court This Week, Relieving Judge Munroe.

Marlin, June 11.—The feature of the day's services in Marlin were the revival services being conducted at the first Methodist church by Evangelist W. M. McIntosh of Iuka, Miss.

During the afternoon Bob Lewis, a recently converted lawyer of Paris, Texas, at a special "men's only" meeting, made a stirring address in which he told of his life and of his remarkable conversion about one year ago during a meeting in Paris by Evangelist McIntosh.

At night the large auditorium was filled with people, the Baptists and Presbyterians joining in the services.

Rev. Frank Boyles, who entered the ministry while county attorney of Falls county some years ago, has returned to Marlin to live during his recovery from illness which caused him to resign the pastorate of the First Methodist church in Houston some months ago.

Judge H. B. Porter of Hillsboro will preside over district court in Marlin this week, having exchanged places for the week with District Judge Richard I. Munroe, who went to Hillsboro.

Warren W. Hunt, official court stenographer, returned from Waco this morning, where he went Saturday to hear Governor Ferguson make his speech.

Rev. Whitehurst at Mt. Calm.

Mt. Calm, June 11.—Presiding Elder J. A. Whitehurst preached at the Methodist church today and this evening and will hold a quarterly conference tomorrow. Dr. Whitehurst is a pleasing speaker and his hearers were greatly edified by his two addresses.

INTERPRETER FOR THE FORD MOTOR CO.

Had Spent Six Hundred Dollars Trying to Cure His Stomach Trouble

It has been estimated that there are at least five million adults in the United States upon whom dangerous diseases are working without the knowledge of the victim. It is a matter of record that 90 per cent of the hundreds of people rejected last year by one of the largest insurance companies on account of disease directly traceable to the stomach, liver and kidneys were unaware of their danger until the examining physician informed them of it. To these people the new herbal system tonic, Plant Juice, is like a ray of hope. It is a modern remedy for modern ills caused by the rush and hustle of the times, and is the best tonic to be found for all ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood.

Only recently the following testimonial was received from Mr. Joseph Korolishin, who resides at 201 Plumer avenue, Detroit, Mich., and is well known, being interpreter for the Ford Motor Car company. He says:

"I had been sick for a long time with stomach, liver and kidney trouble and had spent over six hundred dollars in money on different remedies and treatments, and I was left in a worse condition than I was before. I had been reading in the Detroit papers about Plant Juice and decided to try it. After I had used only about half a bottle my stomach started to improve. I have only used one bottle and my health is so good that I can't praise Plant Juice too highly."

leaders of the movement to direct the fight. Democratic national committeemen say there are indications that the party will take a position on suffrage similar to that of the republicans—that is, a declaration in principle for suffrage but leaving it a matter for the states to determine.

There were unconfirmed reports tonight that William J. Bryan, though not a delegate, would find some way to precipitate a fight on the preparedness plank, but none of his friends here were in a position to say how he might touch on the issue in a convention in which he is not a delegate.

Mr. Bryan will only be able to address the convention with the unanimous consent of its 1,092 delegates and he may not occupy a seat on the floor of the convention unless both a delegate and his alternate retire and give him their proxy.

GETTING COLISEUM READY FOR MEETING.

Work on preparations of the convention hall is being rushed and the national committee is confident it will be ready for the first sesson. Day and night, carpenters and decorators are at work transforming the coliseum into a convention hall. Nearly 12,000 seats have been provided for delegates, alternates, press, guests and spectators and the demaad for tickets has far outrun the supply. The national committee has threatened with arrest any one found speculating in tickets to the convention.

A local committee which subscribed heavily to the fund that brought the convention to St. Louis has set a price of $50 for a ticket for the week.

Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, with several members of the New York delegation, was expected here late tonight. The main body of the New York delegation and Tammany men numbering nearly 1,000, are expected here on special trains Tuesday. Tammany is sending the largest contingent of any state. The New York men are especially interested in the keynote speech to be delivered by former Governor Martin J. Glynn of New York, as temporary chairman of the convention. He and Senator Ollie James of Kentucky, who is to be permanent chairman, are expected tomorrow.

LIBRARY HAS BOOKS ON TRAVEL IN U. S.

For the prospective summer tourist, the books listed below on the "beauty spots" of our own country will prove most interesting and helpful. These may be borrowed from the public library for two weeks with the privilege of renewal for two weeks more. The library is located at the corner of Twelfth and Austin streets and is free to all.

"We Discover New England," by Louise Closser Hale. Drawings by Walter Hale. A lively, diverting narrative of a motor trip taken by the writer and the illustrator, from New York through the Berkshires to Lake Champlain, east to the White Mountains and down the coast from Portland, Maine, to the Sound.

"Highways and Byways from the St. Lawrence to Virginia," by Clifton Johnson. Entertaining, conversational chapters on town and country regions of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, with a chapter on Washington and vicinity. Notes for tourists at the end of each chapter, and forty-eight illustrations from photographs.

"Through the Grand Canyon from Wyoming to Mexico," by E. L. Kolb. Story of a perilous rowboat trip taken by the author, accompanied by his brother. He was not the first to attempt the journey nor to describe it, but was the first to attempt to take moving pictures on the trip.

"A Guidebook to Colorado," by Eugene Parsons. A handbook, dealing with the state by counties. The history, area, special features, etc., of each are given, with information on motor and railway routes, railway rates and hotel prices.

"The Spell of the Rockies," by Enos A. Mills. A record of long tramps over glaciers, perilous climbs over crags and peaks and hairbreadth escapes from avalanches and forest fires. Studies of the beaver, coyote and other animals are entertainingly given. Will be popular with boys as well as adults.

"The Tourist's California," by Ruth K. Wood. Following a chapter of general information are others on hotels and restaurants, theatres and sports, and descriptions of trips to San Francisco, Sacramento, the Upper Coast Region, the Yosemite, the mission country and elsewhere throughout the state.

"Guidebooks of the Western United States." Four volumes. A series of valuable guidebooks which cover the four older railroad routes west of the Mississippi. Though the geological interest is uppermost, there is enough of geography, history, description of routes, scenic features and resources to make them of exceptional value to traveler or homeseeker. The railway routes treated are: The overland route, with a side trip to Yellowstone National park; the Shasta route and coast line; the Santa Fe route, with a side trip to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado; the Northern Pacific route, with a side trip to the Yellowstone National park.

"Roughing It De Luxe," by Irvin S. Cobb. Mr. Cobb traveled to California by the southern route and stopped off by way to see the Grand Canyon. He writes about it here, and adds later chapters on the California climate, San Francisco and the vanishing Indian. While Mr. Cobb saw the same things that many others see on the same trip, he imparts a charm to them by his inimitable style.

RICHES AND HEAVEN TEXT OF SERMON

REV. E. E. INGRAM IN SERMON SAYS THAT WEALTH AND SIN ARE SYNONYMOUS.

WEALTH, RICH MAN'S "BUNKER"

The Poor Man Thanks God for His Crust While the Rich Man Thanks Himself.

"Why it Is Hard for a Rich Man to Enter Into the Kingdom of God," was the subject of Rev. E. E. Ingram's sermon at the Central Presbyterian church last night. The text was from Luke 18:24, "How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God." The sermon, in part, follows:

"The 'occasion' of this text forms an interesting setting. Jesus has just been approached by a very rich young man who earnestly desired to find the kingdom of God. When he asked the Savior how to find it he was told to observe all the requirements of the law and replied that he had done so. Then Jesus told him to sell his possessions and distribute them among the poor. It was when he failed to comply with this that Jesus said, 'How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the Kingdom of God.'

"Out of this occasion grew the Master's far-famed saying that 'It is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God.' It is to be assumed right at the start that Jesus said what he meant and meant what he said, every word of it, and this without adding thereto or taking therefrom. But what is meant by the Kingdom of God? An earthly kingdom is a certain number of individuals living under the same laws which they have made to govern themselves and seeking the realization of certain definite ideals. Such is God's kingdom, too. It is composed of such as order their lives in accordance with the divine law, seeking the realization of the ideals recognized as divine. In the scientific world we have what is known as the 'active principle.' It is that that makes each living thing what it is. In the Kingdom of God, God is the 'active principle' in each man's heart and life. So the Kingdom of God is God in a man's heart, rignly and truly expressed in that individual's life.

WHY RICHES ARE DIFFICULTIES.

This may help us to understand why it is hard for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God. It must be hard for Jesus said so. And in so saying he is not trying to add to the difficulties of the rich with respect to his kingdom, for rich and poor must enter it in the same way. Jesus is here doing no more than expressing what to him was an obvious fact.

It cannot be because there is any inherent wrong in riches. It is not a sin to be rich unless riches are wrongly acquired. Neither is it a sin to be poor unless poverty is due to one's misconduct. Wealth and sin are not synonymous terms. If it were so many of the best men both in and out of the Bible would be sinners above measure. And all of us would like to be sinners in the same way. Abraham was rich. So were Jacob, Joseph, David and Solomon. Jesus did not condemn this young man's riches. No fault was found with him on the score. In fact, the ability to acquire wealth is as much of a God-given talent as are the talents of art and music. So the difficulty is not found in the riches alone.

Neither is hard because rich men are necessarily worse than any other class of men. They will average up with others in correct living, take them man for man. You will observe the Master found no fault with this young man's life. He was evidently up to the average in that respect. So the life of a rich man is not necessarily the barrier to his entrance into the kingdom of God.

Nor is the difficulty to be found in the operation of the law of compensation. An extra burden is not laid upon the rich in this respect just to compensate the poor for being poor. It is not made hard for the rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God just to levy a special tax upon him. No more is it to compensate the poor man for what he must endure. We must look elsewhere for the explanation, for Jesus meant what he said when he declared that it was a difficult thing for a rich man to do.

WEALTH TENDS TO MAKE SELF SUFFICIENT.

We can find the explanation at least partly in the fact that wealth tends to make one feel self sufficient, and so forgetful of God, just as health often leads us to forget the doctor, or security, danger. Ingersoll once said a very true thing along this line. He declared that the poor man sits down to his crust and thanks the God who gave it, while the rich man enjoys his feast and congratulates himself. Very few people, rich or poor, are well enough balanced to stand wealth. The richer some people grow the farther they drift from God. They do not feel their need of God and so it is hard for them to enter into the Kingdom of God.

Perhaps, too, it is because many rich men are too far removed from the multitude, and necessarily so. Some big rich men I know employ a man to distribute charities. That shows how far removed they are from the real currents of life. For one, I believe that the hearts of the rich are as warm toward the needs of humanity as are the hearts of any other class. The main difficulty is that their wealth prohibits their coming into intimate contact with the needy. That very fact is he rich man's 'bunker.' I makes it thrice hard for him to enter into the Kingdom of God.

LIFE'S HORIZON IS NARROWED.

"Another reason for its being so hard is to be found in the fact that wealth tends to make one forget the far-reaching and ultimate purpose of life. It narrows one's horizon. That is a human weakness. God put us here for the twofold purpose of self-improvement and the improvement of others. The realization of these two things should command our every energy. It is so easy to confuse self-satisfaction and success with self-improvement. There is no self-improvement apart from the education of the heart. No more is the improvement of others to be obtained in doling out relief no matter how great, or necessary, the need. To bring every individual to the poing of being self-sustaining is to forward his improvement. How easy it is to lose sight of both of these points when one's bank account is growing.

"So we see that Jesus is not condemning the rich or riches. We, too, can see 'how hardly shall they that have riches enter into the Kingdom of God.' But when such do enter into that kingdom, as so many of them do, how much praise is their due for the difficulties overcome."

400,000 Bags in DeLeon County for the Peanut Crop

Persons in this section who are making a try at raising peanuts should be encouraged by information which has been received here by Col. W. M. Manchester regarding the magnitude and growing importance of the peanut industry, the news coming from the DeLeon country, where the biggest lot of bags for handling the peanut crop has been received that has ever come to Texas.

The shipments of bags into DeLeon already have reached the astounding total of fifteen solid carloads, at a value of $40,000 for empty burlap bags, and it is expected to run the total up to $50,000 worth of the bags within a very short time. The fifteen carloads amount to an even 400,000 bags, and this will be increased to 500,000, anyway. The bags will be used in caring for the big peanut crop of the DeLeon and other sections, and Manager W. C. Lightfoot of the DeLeon Bag company expects the crop to be a great one this year.

The bags are warehoused at DeLeon, and it has required a great deal of labor to handle them.

Boy Scouts' Camp Has Visitors' Day

The Boy Scouts who are now in camp near Ocee entertained their parents and friends yesterday with a number of swimming events. About 100 visitors motored out to the camp during the day and report an excellent outing. They carried with them baskets of fruit and other dainties, all of which were appreciated by the boys. The director of the camp said that tents would probably be unstaked about the latter part of the week, and the return trip home made Saturday.

Following are the results of the swimming contests:

Small Boys' Overhanded Race—First, Bob Ward; second, Sub Mathews; third, Jim Terry.

Overhanded Championship Race—First, Thomas Patten; second, Frank Owens; third, John Parsons.

Longest Under-water Dive—Thomas Patten tied with John Parsons.

Fancy Swimming Stroke—First, Thomas Patten; second, Frank Owens.

Memorial Service Held by Woodmen

The members of the Geyser City camp No. 6, Woodmen of the World, went to the cemeteries yesterday and decorated the graves of the deceased Woodmen.

This is the annual custom and has been followed for a number of years, each summer one day being set apart for the purpose of making beautiful the resting places of those of whom beautiful memories remain. Many of the monuments in the cemeteries were unveiled and large crowds visited the cemeteries during the afternoon.

There was a program at the services at Oakwood, Hon. John Maxwell being the orator for the occasion. Miss Kathleen Williams recited the poem, "Why Should the Spirit of Mortal Be Proud?" which was received with enthusiasm.

The services were in charge of officers of Geyser City camp.

"Alice in Wonderland."

The insistent cry for "better films for children" has been met by various producing companies with successful efforts in the filming of fairy stories with which every child in America and many other countries are familiar, but the crowning effort and achievement is the screening of that dearest and sweeting of all the stories for children, not only the little ones but the grown up ones, too—"Alice in Wonderland." With little Violet Savoy, late star of the great stage play, "The Littlest Rebel," plays the part of Alice and a more charming and would be difficult to find. She is simply sweet and sensitive in her expression of surprise and interest that a little girl would feel when confronted with the strange companions one meets on Wonderland. The delightful film version will play at the Hippodrome today and Tuesday on a special children's program and there is no doubt but that the escort of the little ones will enjoy the trip back to Alice's land as thoroughly as will the kiddies themselves.

Tweedle Dum and Tweedle Dee are here with their great funny round tummies, and Walrus and the Carpenter, the Mad Hatter and his tea party, Humpty Dumpty who sat on the wall, the trial of the knave who stole the tarts of the Queen of Hearts, and all the other grotesque inhabitants of Wonderland. The whimsical conversations and occasional verses are incorporated in excellent subtitles, and the delightful imagination that went into the writing of "Alice in Wonderland" is not in any measure lost in the photoplay adaptation.

No More Joy in This Ride

Joy riding is all right but—there are several provisions that must be made before it is considered the proper thing, and chief among these is that the vehicle must be the property of the riders or must be taken with the consent of the owner.

The misunderstanding of this theory caused four boys, all aged sixteen, to be taken to police headquarters yesterday afternoon after they had taken an automobile belonging to Coke Horn from the ball park where it had been left by Mr. Horn. It was lots of fun! Even with the present high price of gasoline, their "joying" was not interrupted with the consideration of the cost. What was cost to them?

At length they stopped the car and began playing ball, near Taylor's wood yard, on Tenth and Franklin. Mr. Horn when he found that his car was missing reported it to the police and a search near the ball park was made, but in vain. The police began the search and at 6:30 they located the automobile and the runaways. The machine was returned to its owner and the culprits were taken to jail. They made no bond last night and if they are not released this morning will be transferred to the county jail.

CITY NEWS BRIEFS.

Weather conditions were tempting yesterday, and many residents were out for walks, drives and moving about generally to get the fresh air. There was a good breeze practically all day, and this mitigated the heat of the afternoon.

Waco politicians and persons who take an interest in politics will now be looking forward to the meeting of democrats in St. Louis. The chief interest in this convention will center in the policies enunciated, as it is pretty well known who the men will be.

One of the finest collections of horns in Texas belongs to Thompson Dillard on South Sixth street, between Austin and Franklin streets. Mr. Dillard has been many years in making the collection, but has a fine one. Persons who are familiar with such matters say that the collection is one of the best they have ever seen.

Katy Employes Ass'n Will Be Guest of Y. M. B. L. Tuesday

When the general meeting of the Y. M. B. L. is held at their rooms tomorrow night they will have as their guests members of the Katy-American Express Company Employes' association. A great deal of the time will be devoted to the discussion of plans for the third trade trip of the summer by the Y. M. B. L., which will be made to Palestine on Thursday, June 15.

Reports will be filed by all general and special committees at the directors' meeting on the same night. The reports will cover the work that has been done by the league during the last month. The directors will also give some time to the discussion of the work toward securing for Waco the location of the Katy hospital.

After the general meeting, there will be a social hour with refreshments and a general good time.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wm. J McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

Memorial Service Held by Woodmen

The members of the Geyser City camp No. 6, Woodmen of the World, went to the cemeteries yesterday and decorated the graves of the deceased Woodmen.

This is the annual custom and has been followed for a number of years, each summer one day being set apart for the purpose of making beautiful the resting places of those of whom beautiful memories remain. Many of the monuments in the cemeteries were unveiled and large crowds visited the cemeteries during the afternoon.

There was a program at the services at Oakwood, Hon. John Maxwell being the orator for the occasion. Miss Kathleen Williams recited the poem, "Why Should the Spirit of Mortal Be Proud?" which was received with enthusiasm.

The services were in charge of officers of Geyser City camp.

No More Joy in This Ride

Joy riding is all right but—there are several provisions that must be made before it is considered the proper thing, and chief among these is that the vehicle must be the property of the riders or must be taken with the consent of the owner.

The misunderstanding of this theory caused four boys, all aged sixteen, to be taken to police headquarters yesterday afternoon after they had taken an automobile belonging to Coke Horn from the ball park where it had been left by Mr. Horn. It was lots of fun! Even with the present high price of gasoline, their "joying" was not interrupted with the consideration of the cost. What was cost to them?

At length they stopped the car and began playing ball, near Taylor's wood yard, on Tenth and Franklin. Mr. Horn when he found that his car was missing reported it to the police and a search near the ball park was made, but in vain. The police began the search and at 6:30 they located the automobile and the runaways. The machine was returned to its owner and the culprits were taken to jail. They are not released this morning will be transferred to the county jail.

CITY NEWS BRIEFS

Weather conditions were tempting yesterday, and many residents were out for walks, drives and moving about generally to get the fresh air. There was a good breeze practically all day, and this mitigated the heat of the afternoon.

Waco politicians and persons who take an interest in politics will now be looking forward to the meeting of democrats in St. Louis. The chief interest in this convention will center in the policies enunciated, as it is pretty well known who the men will be.

One of the finest collections of horns in Texas belongs to Thompson Dillard on South Sixth street, between Austin and Franklin streets. Mr. Dillard has been many years in making the collection, but has a fine one. Persons who are familiar with such matters say that the collection is one of the best they have ever seen.

"Alice In Wonderland."

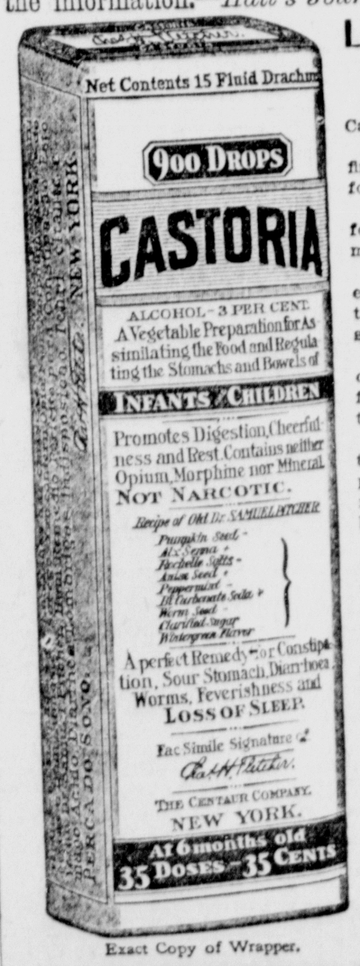

The insistent cry for "better films for children" has been met by various producing companies with successful efforts in the filming of fairy stories with which every child in America and many other countries are familiar, but the crowning effort and achievement is the screening of that dearest and sweeting of all the stories for children, not only the little ones but the grown up ones, too—"Alice in Wonderland." With little Violet Savoy, late star of the great stage play, "The Littlest Rebel," plays the part of Alice and a more charming and would be difficult to find. She is simply sweet and sensitive in her expression of surprise and interest that a little girl would feel when confronted with the strange companions one meets on Wonderland. The delightful film version will play at the Hippodrome today and Tuesday on a special children's program and there is no doubt but that the escort of the little ones will enjoy the trip back to Alice's land as thoroughly as will the kiddies themselves.

Tweedle Dum and Tweedle Dee are here with their great funny round tummies, and Walrus and the Carpenter, the Mad Hatter and his tea party, Humpty Dumpty who sat on the wall, the trial of the knave who stole the tarts of the Queen of Hearts, and all the other grotesque inhabitants of Wonderland. The whimsical conversations and occasional verses are incorporated in excellent subtitles, and the delightful imagination that went into the writing of "Alice in Wonderland" is not in any measure lost in the photoplay adaptation.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wm. J McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

HIS STRENGTH AND HIS WEAKNESS.

Hughes is at once a strong and a weak candidate. He is strong with the rock-ribbed republicans, of the type to whom McKinley and Taft appealed. He is weak with the element which is impressed with the spirit of progress. He will, no doubt, receive the support of those who prefer some other country to this country. Notwithstanding his somewhat pompous declaration of allegiance to America, he will be universally distrusted by all to whom America is first. His nomination, over the protest of Roosevelt, who described him as a "viceroy of a foreign government," puts that issue to the fore. The vigorous protest against his nomination which was made by Roosevelt makes it impossible for the latter to render the republican ticket any aid, even if he were disposed to do it, which is doubtful. While his element represented the majority of the votes, the only consideration it got at the hands of the other crowd was an invitation to come in out of the rain.

The progressive party is in a queer situation. Its candidate has placed his resignation in the hands of the national committee, to be accepted provided Hughes shall satisfy it that he ought to be elected. This, of course, invites private dickering, the details of which will never get to the public. The committee will be "satisfied;" the resignation will be accepted—and a large element of the progressives will vote for Wilson.

The indecision, bargaining and uncertainties which were the principal features of the twin conventions at Chicago contrast strikingly with Hughes' criticisms of the Wilson administration because of its alleged want of a definite policy. At a time when the need of the hour is a strong, resolute man, the republicans have picked another Rutherford Hayes. The American voters will not displace a man with an iron jaw for such a weakling.

Republican Chairman Hilles says he predicted six months ago that the candidate would be "born in the convention—and he was." Did you prophesy that he would be still-born, Mr. Hilles?

Another democratic judge on the supreme court makes it reasonably certain that the constitution will have easy sailing for many years to come.

Italy is training boy colonies as farmers to do the work of the farmers killed in battle. Science is fighting Death over there, but, so far, Death has the best of the battle.

England is considering the stoppage of all alcoholic distillation until after the war, as a military necessity. In the honor of a nation's peril, all men recognize Booze as its greatest enemy. Why should it require a national calamity to teach a lesson based on the common knowledge of mankind?

Roosevelt's suggestion of Lodge as a compromise candidate filled up 3¾ seconds of space in the proceedings. If the regulars lost any opportunity to throw ice water down the backs of the progressives, history has neglected to preserve a record of it.

"I deeply appreciate the responsibility you impose," says Hughes; "I should have been glad to have that responsibility placed upon another." Yes, judge; it did look that way, but somebody had to be sacrificed.

Using a phrase made famous by Jim Hogg, did anybody ever hear of a candidate who had as sudden attack of lockjaw as that which has transfixed the tongue of Teddy?

Teddy puts it up to what the populists used to call a con-fer-ence. Then the people will hold a confabulence in November that will upset all those nicely laid plans of mice and men.

It took just twenty-one words to put Mr. Hughes off the Supreme Bench, and he will probably have more than twenty-one years to regret the exodus.

Judge Hughes had better begin looking after his law connections for January right now, while his name has a familiar ring to it.

Texas voted solidly for Hughes on the third ballot, which is precisely the way it will not vote for him in the November ballot.

Hitchcock says he's pleased. Of course he is. Visions of a postmastergeneralship are already flitting before him in daylight dreams.

Both of the republican nominees wear whiskers, and the way the cyclone will sing through them will make the owners shiver.

If Hiram Johnson acts like he talks, something will be uprooted when he gets back to California, and it won't be an orange grove.

Fairbanks said he wouldn't and then said he would. And the people will say in November that he couldn't if he would.

Is it possible that somebody reloaded that progressive magazine with sawdust before the hostilities commenced?

Texas will pull off the only big contest in the St. Louis convention. All things work together for the advertisement of Texas.

The shocking thing about it is that the regulars did not invite Teddy to have as much as a glass of soda pop.

DAILY SHORT STORY.

When Tom Chased the Cows.

By LEILA ESMOND.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Tom Maben was cultivating the corn when across the expanse of golden brown loam with the shoots of tender green came a terrified scream. He dropped the hoe and ran toward the road from which the sound had come, but all he could see was a long stretch of dusty yellow in both directions and in the near distance four or five Herefords grazing peacefully along the fence.

He listened intently, but hearing nothing more turned to go back. "Some of the Strauss kids playing under the hazel bushes, I suppose, but it did sound as though some one was in mortal agony."

He had scarcely gone a dozen feet when some one called despairingly, "Oh, please don't go away!"

Tom turned and saw a girl leaning over the fence toward him, her hands outstretched in supplication. She was pretty and well dressed, her hat and shoes almost matching the dust color of the road. Beside her on the ground was a traveling bag.

"What's wrong?" he called, coming back in a couple of bounds. "Is anybody—did anything hurt you?" He looked quickly in every direction for a fleeing highwayman, or a crouching lion, or something of that sort. The girl's hysteria would warrant nothing less.

"It's—it's those cows," she shivered. "They're coming this way! And I can't run, for if I do they'll chase me and I can't climb a fence! Oh, do hurry up and do something!"

For Tom was standing motionless and, indeed, open mouthed. He wasn't quite sure he had heard aright to begin with, and if he had he wasn't certain whether she was making a fool of him or posing for a movie, like the crowd that had been there in the fall.

"Oh, please!"

This brought him to his senses. There was no mistaking the frightened agony of her tone. The girl was almost scared to death!

"Sure! I'll chase 'em! Don't be frightened. They won't hurt you. They got out of the pasture some way. The gate's been left open, I suppose. Why, you're shaking like a leaf! That's too bad! But they wouldn't hurt you in ten years. Why, they're afraid of you."

He picked up a stick and went after the black and white bugaboos peacefully eating the juicy young grass in the fence corners. "Get back, there, Posey; go along there! Molly, hike! Scoot—the whole bunch of you!"

The cows turned slowly with eyes of hurt surprise and went quietly back the way they had come through the gap in the fence and into the pasture. Tom swung the big gate shut and fastened it. There was a twinkle in his eye as he went back to the girl sitting beside the road. Her own eyes were shut and she was breathing quickly.

"Are they gone?" she whispered.

"Yes. They won't eat you now." It was impossible for him to keep the note of fun out of his voice.

She flushed angrily and sprang up. "It's just as natural for me to be afraid of cows as it is for you farmers to dodge trolleys and taxis in the city," she retorted. "Anyway, you've no business letting them roam around loose!" She picked up her bag and brushed at her dress. "I'm hunting Maybens. Will you please tell me where they live?"

"That's our house," answered Tom. "If you give me your bag I'll take you over. Did you see mother's advertisement for summer boarders?"

"Yes."

"I—we didn't want her to do——" he began, and then changed it. "She wants money for some orphan fund and has chosen this way of getting it. Mother's a wonder!"

But if he had any notion of starting conversation with the newcomer he was mistaken. A short "Indeed!" was her only reply.

To herself Carolyn Wilson was saying, "I ought to be able to pay expenses here! The people promise well if this one is a sample. I can send in a story every day to the paper and, besides, I shall have plenty of time to recuperate. I hope the family is large so I'll have lots of material to write about. There ought to be a pa and ma and some girls and little kids. This I suppose is big brother!"

Carolyn's hope was verified. The family was large and every one of them proceeded immediately to make her feel at home. Each one in his own particular way did what he could to make her stay pleasant, particularly Tom, on whom the girl had made a deep impression. Her face was always between him and the corn rows, in the clouds when he looked up, and in his dreams when he slept.

Carolyn wrote mornings and slept in the afternoon, but after five o'clock, when she made her daily trip to the postoffice and Tom's work in the fields was done they had many pleasant times together. To Tom it was heaven. To the girl merely pastime. Tom was intelligent, she discovered, and knew a lot of things. In fact, the whole family was entertaining, and, having a keen wit and sense of humor and seeing the funny side of all their ways, Carolyn sent many a humorous quip to her paper accompanied by pen-and-ink sketches, at which she was clever.

One Sunday, as she lay almost asleep in the hammock, Tom picked up a paper from the ground beside her and started to read.

Suddenly he flung it down. "That rot is unkind and untrue!" he cried.

Carolyn was wide awake now and sat up. "What is it?" she asked.

"Oh, those city chaps think it's funny to write all kinds of things about us here in the country. It's all exaggerated and gives a false impression. One would think that people who work with their hands can't grow brains at all, that we are an ignorant, stupid lot made to be laughed at, when the truth of it is we are doing the real work of the world. People can say what they like about education and art and culture, but where would all those things be if people were not fed? We feed the world and dress the world and do all but shelter it. It's a good work and it's cruel for some silly, little, near-sighted, weak-legged, narrow-minded reporter to be writing false truck like that for the world to read just to put a few miserable bites into his starved stomach!"

Carolyn sprang to her feet. It was on her tongue to defend what she had done, but Tom, with his blazing eyes and head thrown back, frightened her. And he was right! It was a wretched thing to do, to make fun of these simple true-hearted people. Her head dropped.

"Yes! It is wrong!" she said simply. "The person who did that should be punished. Tom," suddenly, "I'm going home to-morrow!"

"To-morrow! Good heavens!"

"Yes, I've some business to attend to and I must go. Will you come to see me some time, Tom?" very kindly. "Do you ever come to the city?"

"Yes!" he said after a pause. "I do go sometimes and I'll go to see you. Dad and the boys can get along without me now for a while I guess."

So Carolyn said good-bye to the Maybens and Tom.

The men in the outer office gave her three cheers when she came in, for Carolyn was popular on the paper.

"Where's Stubbs?" she asked. Stubbs was a nickname for the editor-in-chief.

"Not here yet."

"Well, I'll wait inside."

"Some one ahead of you."

"Oh, that's all right. I'll have company."

She opened the door and went in.

There, in the editor's chair, sat Tom Mayben. Carolyn went up close to the desk and looked at him in silence. Tom, too, seemed too paralyzed to speak.

Then the girl's sense of humor triumphed. "Hello!" she giggled.

"What's the joke? I leave you on Monday in blue jeans and boots. I find you on Tuesday in a tailor made and spats. What's the joke?"

"Joke? There isn't any unless it's for you to explain. What are you doing here?"

"I write for the paper."

"So do I," he said. "Scientific farming stuff. But I'm starting a magazine for myself, so I came to your editor for advice."

"Bravo, Tom," cried Carolyn. "Some day I'm going to beg your forgiveness for something, but not just now. It can wait."

"Yes, it can wait," agreed Tom. "I'm looking for a partner, Carolyn. Would you care for the job?"

"With your magazine you mean, Tom?"

"Yes, and otherwise. How about it?"

"Sh! Here comes Stubbs! I'll think it over and let you know," she nodded encouragingly.

Sulphur Bluff Man Has Pecan Orchard

(Clarksville Times.)

J. W. St. Clair, who lives at Sulphur Bluff, was here last week and called at the Times office in search of information concerning grafted pecans in Red River county. Mr. St. Clair recalled an item in the Times several months ago concerning the pecan orchard of J. J. Schnieder of Bryarly and wanted to obtain names of parties who have successfully grafted pecans.

He states that he has a pecan orchard, which he is enlarging. At present he has 264 trees and is meeting with splendid success.

Three cars of pecans were shipped from Clarksville last winter and the crop promises to be a steady revenue producer in the future.

NORTHEAST TEXAS PEACHES OUTLOOK.

(Tyler Courier-Times.)

Mount Pleanast, June 2.—An interesting meeting of the Fruit and Truck Growers' association was held here Saturday evening for the purpose of discussing the best method of selling and marketing both the Irish potato and peach crops of Titus and adjoining counties.

The peach crop is not as large as it was last year, but fruit men say the quality is better and owing to the scarcity of the crop in some other sections of northeast Texas, it will command much better prices than it did last season. The question of employing a regular sales agent was discussed, but the matter was postponed until next Saturday, when one will be employed by the association, or rather, the directors.

Most of the fruit growers in Franklin county have already contracted their peach crop to a local man at Mount Vernon at 50 cents per bushel, but the growers here will not contract for less than 75 cents, having already received an offer of 65 cents, and they are desirous of getting $1 per bushel for choice Elbertas. Some peaches are small and of an inferior grade.

A car of new Irish potatoes will be loaded and shipped from here next Friday. While the crop is not as large as last year, the potatoes are exceptionally fine and are bringing from $1 to $1.50 on the local market now. It is estimated that 3000 cars of peaches will be shipped from northeast Texas this season.

FALL IRISH POTATOES IS GOOD CROP.

(Tyler Courier-Times.)

Every gardener that has a little land suitable should plant at least a small patch of Irish potatoes for what is generally called "fall crop." Fall potatoes are relished when the summer crop is gone.

Fall Irish potatoes are more easily kept than the spring crop. In fact, there is very little difficulty in keeping Irish potatoes when they mature early in the fall because the heat of summer is over when the tubers are dug. The hot summer months, July and August, are the trying season of Irish potatoes when there are few facilities for keeping them. But if the tubers are still growing they are safe and when dug are easily kept through the winter.

The worst difficulty in growing fall crop potatoes is sufficient moisture to get a stand and to give the plants a fair start. To be sure of getting a stand, some growers "sprout" the tubers to be used for fall crop. To do this, the tubers are put in damp straw, leaves, litter or soil, where there is shade and where the tubers are forced to start sprouts. The tubers are then planted in moist soil, where they soon germinate to a stand.

Land for late Irish potatoes should be well prepared. Better results may be expected if the land was prepared early and no early crop grown on it. This leaves the land in better condition for the potato crop.

The mistake should not be made of planting too late. It does not require long to make a crop of potatoes in the spring when the conditions are favorable, but it is best not to take too much risk in summer. Planting is done generally in June, unless sprouting is done and frost is not expected till about the last of October. If that is the case, planting may be done about the first of July. But June planting will generally be safer.

Where there is plenty of straw or rubbish not needed, mulching is highly desirable. This protects the soil and keeps the ground cool when the summer sun is rather severe.

Very little cultivation will be needed ordinarily if the land is not badly contaminated with weeds. The moisture should be saved as best one can for moisture will generally be the determining factor.—Farm and Ranch.

First Car of Oats.

The first car of oats to leave Temple this season was shipped out Wednesday by J. F. Lillard of the Sunset Milling company, consigned to a Houston firm. They were from the Park Carpenter farm and brought 37c off the wagon.

Mr. Carpenter is not yet through threshing and does not know exactly just how the yield is turning out, but it will probably fall somewhere in thirty bushels to the acre. The yield on an adjoining farm reached forty bushels. Threshing throughout the county will be pretty well under way by the last of the week.

N. D. Zuber, assistant entomologist, who accompanied Mr. Tharp, is investigating orchard conditions in the Tyler-Jacksonville section before returning to Austin.

Early Corn Crop Is Now Assured

(Hempstead News.)

The rainfall of Wednesday totaled one inch, and seems to have been general over the county, thus insuring a bumper corn crop in the early plantings, while pastures and hay crops and all kinds of vegetation will be benefited materially. The rain was an even fall, giving the soil a good soaking. The watermelon crop will also be given a great boost and the early melons will mature in nice shape without any more rain. Everything is looking good and seasonable now, and our farmers can attend an occasional picnic with big long smiles, and give the candidates all kinds of flattering promises, no difference which way the election goes.

Now is the time for our farmers to plant their winter feed crops, and fall forage crops, if they have hogs and stock to feed. Let us plant them now and be prepared for the winter larder well filled with good old ham and pork sausage, and a few bales of hay for Old Brindle to keep up the butter and milk supply.

Fresh Vegetables on Market.

The vegetable market of Laredo at this time is displaying a lot of wholesome vegetables fresh from the gardens on the outskirts of the city, where a diversity of seasonable produce was planted in the springtime and are now coming in on the market at a time to supply a variety of vegetables for the family board.

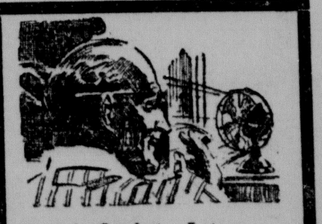

As one wanders through the city market these mornings he observes the stands of the vegetable vendors therein filled with a choice assortment of vegetables of all kinds. On the outside of the market are many wagons parked about the plaza and filled with fresh vegetables, these including sweet peppers, roasting ears, tomatoes, potatoes, onions, etc.

HIS STRENGTH AND HIS WEAKNESS.

Hughes is at once a strong and a weak candidate. He is strong with the rock-ribbed republicans, of the type to whom McKinley and Taft appealed. He is weak with the element which is impressed with the spirit of progress. He will, no doubt, receive the support of those who prefer some other country to this country. Notwithstanding his somewhat pompous declaration of allegiance to America, he will be universally distrusted by all to whom America is first. His nomination, over the protest of Roosevelt, who described him as a "viceroy of a foreign government," puts that issue to the fore. The vigorous protest against his nomination which was made by Roosevelt makes it impossible for the latter to render the republican ticket any aid, even if he were disposed to do it, which is doubtful. While his element represented the majority of the votes, the only consideration it got at the hands of the other crowd was an invitation to come in out of the rain.

The progressive party is in a queer situation. Its candidate has placed his resignation in the hands of the national committee, to be accepted provided Hughes shall satisfy it that he ought to be elected. This, of course, invites private dickering, the details of which will never get to the public. The committee will be "satisfied;" the resignation will be accepted—and a large element of the progressives will vote for Wilson.

The indecision, bargaining and uncertainties which were the principal features of the twin conventions at Chicago contrast strikingly with Hughes' criticisms of the Wilson administration because of its alleged want of a definite policy. At a time when the need of the hour is a strong, resolute man, the republicans have picked another Rutherford Hayes. The American voters will not displace a man with an iron jaw for such a weakling.

Republican Chairman Hilles says he predicted six months ago that the candidate would be "born in the convention—and he was." Did you prophesy that he would be still-born, Mr. Hilles?

Another democratic judge on the supreme court makes it reasonably certain that the constitution will have easy sailing for many years to come.

Italy is training boy colonies as farmers to do the work of the farmers killed in battle. Science is fighting Death over there, but, so far, Death has the best of the battle.

England is considering the stoppage of all alcoholic distillation until after the war, as a military necessity. In the honor of a nation's peril, all men recognize Booze as its greatest enemy. Why should it require a national calamity to teach a lesson based on the common knowledge of mankind?

Roosevelt's suggestion of Lodge as a compromise candidate filled up 3¾ seconds of space in the proceedings. If the regulars lost any opportunity to throw ice water down the backs of the progressives, history has neglected to preserve a record of it.

"I deeply appreciate the responsibility you impose," says Hughes; "I should have been glad to have that responsibility placed upon another." Yes, judge; it did look that way, but somebody had to be sacrificed.

Using a phrase made famous by Jim Hogg, did anybody ever hear of a candidate who had as sudden attack of lockjaw as that which has transfixed the tongue of Teddy?

Teddy puts it up to what the populists used to call a con-fer-ence. Then the people will hold a confabulence in November that will upset all those nicely laid plans of mice and men.

It took just twenty-one words to put Mr. Hughes off the Supreme Bench, and he will probably have more than twenty-one years to regret the exodus.

Judge Hughes had better begin looking after his law connections for January right now, while his name has a familiar ring to it.

Texas voted solidly for Hughes on the third ballot, which is precisely the way it will not vote for him in the November ballot.

Hitchcock says he's pleased. Of course he is. Visions of a postmaster-generalship are already flitting before him in daylight dreams.

Both of the republican nominees wear whiskers, and the way the cyclone will sing through them will make the owners shiver.

If Hiram Johnson acts like he talks, something will be uprooted when he gets back to California, and it won't be an orange grove.

Fairbanks said he wouldn't and then said he would. And the people will say in November that he couldn't if he would.

Is it possible that somebody reloaded that progressive magazine with sawdust before the hostilities commenced?

Texas will pull off the only big contest in the St. Louis convention. All things work together for the advertisement of Texas.

The shocking thing about it is that the regulars did not invite Teddy to have as much as a glass of soda pop.

DAILY SHORT STORY.

When Tom Chased the Cows.

By LEILA ESMOND.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Tom Maben was cultivating the corn when across the expanse of golden brown loam with the shoots of tender green came a terrified scream. He dropped the hoe and ran toward the road from which the sound had come, but all he could see was a long stretch of dusty yellow in both directions and in the near distance four or five Herefords grazing peacefully along the fence.

He listened intently, but hearing nothing more turned to go back. "Some of the Strauss kids playing under the hazel bushes, I suppose, but it did sound as though some one was in mortal agony."

He had scarcely gone a dozen feet when some one called despairingly, "Oh, please don't go away!"

Tom turned and saw a girl leaning over the fence toward him, her hands outstretched in supplication. She was pretty and well dressed, her hat and shoes almost matching the dust color of the road. Beside her on the ground was a traveling bag.

"What's wrong?" he called, coming back in a couple of bounds. "Is anybody—did anything hurt you?" He looked quickly in every direction for a fleeing highwayman, or a crouching lion, or something of that sort. The girl's hysteria would warrant nothing less.

"It's—it's those cows," she shivered. "They're coming this way! And I can't run, for if I do they'll chase me and I can't climb a fence! Oh, do hurry up and do something!"

For Tom was standing motionless and, indeed, open mouthed. He wasn't quite sure he had heard aright to begin with, and if he had he wasn't certain whether she was making a fool of him or posing for a movie, like the crowd that had been there in the fall.

"Oh, please!"

This brought him to his senses. There was no mistaking the frightened agony of her tone. The girl was almost scared to death!

"Sure! I'll chase 'em! Don't be frightened. They won't hurt you. They got out of the pasture some way. The gate's been left open, I suppose. Why, you're shaking like a leaf! That's too bad! But they wouldn't hurt you in ten years. Why, they're afraid of you."

He picked up a stick and went after the black and white bugaboos peacefully eating the juicy young grass in the fence corners. "Get back, there, Posey; go along there! Molly, hike! Scoot—the whole bunch of you!"

The cows turned slowly with eyes of hurt surprise and went quietly back the way they had come through the gap in the fence and into the pasture. Tom swung the big gate shut and fastened it. There was a twinkle in his eye as he went back to the girl sitting beside the road. Her own eyes were shut and she was breathing quickly.

"Are they gone?" she whispered.

"Yes. They won't eat you now." It was impossible for him to keep the note of fun out of his voice.

She flushed angrily and sprang up. "It's just as natural for me to be afraid of cows as it is for you farmers to dodge trolleys and taxis in the city," she retorted. "Anyway, you've no business letting them roam around loose!" She picked up her bag and brushed at her dress. "I'm hunting Maybens. Will you please tell me where they live?"

"That's our house," answered Tom. "If you give me your bag I'll take you over. Did you see mother's advertisement for summer boarders?"

"Yes."

"I—we didn't want her to do——" he began, and then changed it. "She wants money for some orphan fund and has chosen this way of getting it. Mother's a wonder!"

But if he had any notion of starting conversation with the newcomer he was mistaken. A short "Indeed!" was her only reply.

To herself Carolyn Wilson was saying, "I ought to be able to pay expenses here! The people promise well if this one is a sample. I can send in a story every day to the paper and, besides, I shall have plenty of time to recuperate. I hope the family is large so I'll have lots of material to write about. There ought to be a pa and ma and some girls and little kids. This I suppose is big brother!"

Carolyn's hope was verified. The family was large and every one of them proceeded immediately to make her feel at home. Each one in his own particular way did what he could to make her stay pleasant, particularly Tom, on whom the girl had made a deep impression. Her face was always between him and the corn rows, in the clouds when he looked up, and in his dreams when he slept.

Carolyn wrote mornings and slept in the afternoon, but after five o'clock, when she made her daily trip to the postoffice and Tom's work in the fields was done they had many pleasant times together. To Tom it was heaven. To the girl merely pastime. Tom was intelligent, she discovered, and knew a lot of things. In fact, the whole family was entertaining, and, having a keen wit and sense of humor and seeing the funny side of all their ways, Carolyn sent many a humorous quip to her paper accompanied by pen-and-ink sketches, at which she was clever.

One Sunday, as she lay almost asleep in the hammock, Tom picked up a paper from the ground beside her and started to read.

Suddenly he flung it down. "That rot is unkind and untrue!" he cried.

Carolyn was wide awake now and sat up. "What is it?" she asked.

"Oh, those city chaps think it's funny to write all kinds of things about us here in the country. It's all exaggerated and gives a false impression. One would think that people who work with their hands can't grow brains at all, that we are an ignorant, stupid lot made to be laughed at, when the truth of it is we are doing the real work of the world. People can say what they like about education and art and culture, but where would all those things be if people were not fed? We feed the world and dress the world and do all but shelter it. It's a good work and it's cruel for some silly, little, near-sighted, weak-legged, narrow-minded reporter to be writing false truck like that for the world to read just to put a few miserable bites into his starved stomach!"

Carolyn sprang to her feet. It was on her tongue to defend what she had done, but Tom, with his blazing eyes and head thrown back, frightened her. And he was right! It was a wretched thing to do, to make fun of these simple true-hearted people. Her head dropped.

"Yes! It is wrong!" she said simply. "The person who did that should be punished. Tom," suddenly, "I'm going home to-morrow!"

"To-morrow! Good heavens!"

"Yes. I've some business to attend to and I must go. Will you come to see me some time, Tom?" very kindly. "Do you ever come to the city?"

"Yes!" he said after a pause. "I do go sometimes and I'll go to see you. Dad and the boys can get along without me now for a while I guess."

So Carolyn said good-bye to the Maybens and Tom.

The men in the outer office gave her three cheers when she came in, for Carolyn was popular on the paper.

"Where's Stubbs?" she asked. Stubbs was a nickname for the editor-in-chief.

"Not here yet."

"Well, I'll wait inside."

"Some one ahead of you."

"Oh, that's all right. I'll have company."

She opened the door and went in.

There, in the editor's chair, sat Tom Mayben. Carolyn went up close to the desk and looked at him in silence. Tom, too, seemed too paralyzed to speak.

Then the girl's sense of humor triumphed. "Hello!" she giggled.

"What's the joke? I leave you on Monday in blue jeans and boots. I find you on Tuesday in a tailor made and spats. What's the joke?"

"Joke? There isn't any unless it's for you to explain. What are you doing here?"

"I write for the paper."

"So do I," he said. "Scientific farming stuff. But I'm starting a magazine for myself, so I came to your editor for advice."

"Bravo, Tom," cried Carolyn. "Some day I'm going to beg your forgiveness for something, but not just now. It can wait."

"Yes, it can wait," agreed Tom. "I'm looking for a partner, Carolyn. Would you care for the job?"

"With your magazine you mean, Tom?"

"Yes, and otherwise. How about it?"

"Sh! Here comes Stubbs! I'll think it over and let you know," she nodded encouragingly.

Sulphur Bluff Man Has Pecan Orchard

(Clarksville Times.)

J. W. St. Clair, who lives at Sulphur Bluff, was here last week and called at the Times office in search of information concerning grafted pecans in Red River county. Mr. St. Clair recalled an item in the Times several months ago concerning the pecan orchard of J. J. Schnieder of Bryarly and wanted to obtain names of parties who have successfully grafted pecans.

He states that he has a pecan orchard, which he is enlarging. At present he has 264 trees and is meeting with splendid success.

Three cars of pecans were shipped from Clarksville last winter and the crop promises to be a steady revenue producer in the future.

NORTHEAST TEXAS PEACHES OUTLOOK.

(Tyler Courier-Times.)

Mount Pleanast, June 2.—An interesting meeting of the Fruit and Truck Growers' association was held here Saturday evening for the purpose of discussing the best method of selling and marketing both the Irish potato and peach crops of Titus and adjoining counties.

The peach crop is not as large as it was last year, but fruit men say the quality is better and owing to the scarcity of the crop in some other sections of northeast Texas, it will command much better prices than it did last season. The question of employing a regular sales agent was discussed, but the matter was postponed until next Saturday, when one will be employed by the association, or rather, the directors.

Most of the fruit growers in Franklin county have already contracted their peach crop to a local man at Mount Vernon at 50 cents per bushel, but the growers here will not contract for less than 75 cents, having already received an offer of 65 cents, and they are desirous of getting $1 per bushel for choice Elbertas. Some peaches are small and of an inferior grade.

A car of new Irish potatoes will be loaded and shipped from here next Friday. While the crop is not as large as last year, the potatoes are exceptionally fine and are bringing from $1 to $1.50 on the local market now. It is estimated that 3000 cars of peaches will be shipped from northeast Texas this season.

FALL IRISH POTATOES IS GOOD CROP.

(Tyler Courier-Times.)

Every gardener that has a little land suitable should plant at least a small patch of Irish potatoes for what is generally called "fall crop." Fall potatoes are relished when the summer crop is gone.

Fall Irish potatoes are more easily kept than the spring crop. In fact, there is very little difficulty in keeping Irish potatoes when they mature early in the fall because the heat of summer is over when the tubers are dug. The hot summer months, July and August, are the trying season of Irish potatoes when there are few facilities for keeping them. But if the tubers are still growing they are safe and when dug are easily kept through the winter.

The worst difficulty in growing fall crop potatoes is sufficient moisture to get a stand and to give the plants a fair start. To be sure of getting a stand, some growers "sprout" the tubers to be used for fall crop. To do this, the tubers are put in damp straw, leaves, litter or soil, where there is shade and where the tubers are forced to start sprouts. The tubers are then planted in moist soil, where they soon germinate to a stand.

Land for late Irish potatoes should be well prepared. Better results may be expected if the land was prepared early and no early crop grown on it. This leaves the land in better condition for the potato crop.

The mistake should not be made of planting too late. It does not require long to make a crop of potatoes in the spring when the conditions are favorable, but it is best not to take too much risk in summer. Planting is done generally in June, unless sprouting is done and frost is not expected till about the last of October. If that is the case, planting may be done about the first of July. But June planting will generally be safer.

Where there is plenty of straw or rubbish not needed, mulching is highly desirable. This protects the soil and keeps the ground cool when the summer sun is rather severe.

Very little cultivation will be needed ordinarily if the land is not badly contaminated with weeds. The moisture should be saved as best one can for moisture will generally be the determining factor.—Farm and Ranch.

PROSPECTS NOT GOOD FOR FEED CROPS

College Station, Texas, June 11.—Crop conditions in Texas at the moment are not as promising for food and feed as they were at this time last year.

The five district agents of farm demonstration work of the A. and M. college and United States department of agriculture met for conference at College Station last week. It was the consensus of opinion of these men, whose districts cover all parts of the state, that there is a probability of a short feed crop this year. One fact in evidence is the increased acreage in cotton and another is that the sentiment for feed crops this year for some reason is not as strong as last year. The next three weeks is a very critical period with the corn crop. The stalk is small, and even the best cultivation cannot produce a maximum crop. Also weather conditions have not been favorable this spring for a full crop of corn. Therefore, the necessity arises for planting peas, sorghum, peanuts and June corn to make up this prospective shortage.

It is good business in farming to hedge against a loss, either partial or total, in one crop by planting a substitute. These substitute crops can be planted with safety up to June 25. The farmers of the state will make a crop cheaper this year than in several years past, because they have plenty of their own feed, and they should profit by this year's experience.

All interests concerned in agricultural welfare are urged to bring these facts immediately to the attention of the farmers.

CLARENCE OUSLEY,
Director of Extension.

ROTATING OF CROPS SAVES GARDEN SOIL

(Tyler Courier-Times)

Crop rotation should be practiced by every gardener in order to maintain a high degree of soil efficiency, says F. S. Merrill, assistant in horticulture in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

"Soil elements which are lacking may be supplied by expensive fertilizers," says Merrill, "but a cheaper way is to plant a crop with a different food requirement that will replace the exhausted elements.

"Rotation tends to even up the soil—on one element of plant food is exhausted. All crops need humus in the soil and this is the way to get it. In some years green crops should be turned under, thus furnishing an almost immediately available plant food and a large supply of nitrogen.

"Every person should have a regular plan of rotation for his garden, covering a period of three or four years, because no crop should be returned to the soil oftener than every three years. In this way the same amount of all vegetables may be grown one year after another. The plan requires that the plots of ground be the same size.

"In general, one crop should follow another of a different family. For example, potatoes may be followed by beans, peas or cabbage. One plot may be put in sweet corn for two years and then follow by two years of potatoes. Weeds are less difficult to control when crop rotation is practised. Liability of insect injury and fungus disease is reduced."

DENTON COUNTY POULTRY RALLIES

(Record and Chronicle)

The poultry rallies that have been held over the county this week under the direction of the diversification and marketing association, assisted by R. M. Elliott and Mr. McKnight of College Station, closed here Friday afternoon with a county rally at the court house, opening at 2:30 o'clock. The rallies have been held to encourage the growing interest in the poultry industry in the county and for securing a poultry packing plant for Denton. Mr. Elliott and Mr. McKnight have been accompanied on the speaking tour of the county by Dr. W. L. Cowan, G. H. Stallings and W. F. Craddock.

The speakers worked in two parties on a separate itinerary during the week and covered a large part of the county. They had good crowds at every place and their talks were received with interest by those engaged in the poultry business and others interested and planning to enter it. A joint meeting was held by the two parties at Krum Tuesday afternoon and another of the joint meetings is being held at Pilot Point. The meetings over the county close with speeches at Little Elm and Cooper. The plans for the packing plant have been explained at each of the meetings and several shares of stock have been sold over the county.

The Coming Baby! Hooray! Hooray!

Nothing else can so completely endear us to the present and the future as the expected arrival of a baby. But in the meantime the comfort of the mother is of vast importance. There is a splendid external remedy known as "Mother's Friend" which exerts a wonderful influence upon the expanding muscles. They become more pliant, stretch without undue pain, make the period one of pleasant anticipation instead of apprehension. In a series of splendid letters from all over the country mothers tell of the great help "Mother's Friend" was to them. Even grandmothers tell the wonderful story to their own daughters about to enter the state of motherhood. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" today of your nearest druggist. Use this splendid help with your own hand guided by your own mind. For a free book of interest and importance to all mothers write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 409 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. A CREED FOR PROGRESSIVE FARMERS

(Progressive Farmer)

I believe in myself—believe that whatever mistakes I may or may not have made heretofore, I am endowed with limitless possibilities for growth, struggle, triumph and development—making each today better than its yesterday and each tomorrow better than today.

I believe in my work—believe it offers opportunities as an industry, requiring faithful labor; as a profession, requiring scientific knowledge; as a business, requiring commercial ability—each with its challenge and its reward.

I believe in my farm—believe I can make it rich with stored fertility; believe I can make it beautiful with well kept fields, luxuriant crops and grazing herds; and believe that the homestead, whether cottage or mansion, can be made glorious with a wealth of tree and vine and shrub and blossom.

I believe in my family—believe that love in the home is God's best gift on earth, and that to rear noble sons and daughters—with strong bodies, trained minds, clean hearts and cheerful spirits—is the highest achievement in life.

I believe in my neighborhood—believe that by keeping everlastingly at it I can get such co-operation from young and old as to make it a better and better place to live in; and that whether neighbors help or hinder, it is my duty to give some thought every day and do some work every week for the improvement of schools, roads, churches, social life, business co-operation, and all the agencies of rural comradeship and brotherhood, knowing that sooner or later the sowing will bring its harvest.

And finally, I believe in my Creator and Father—believe it is His will that His kingdom should come on earth, and come here in my own particular nook of earth, and that in my every aspiration toward this end, I am a coworker with Him whose power knows no defeat.

Two Freak Grand Prairie Chickens.

Two freak chickens—one with a bill crossed like a pair of scissors, and with only one eye, and the other with no eyes, and no place for them, were exhibited at The Dallas Journal office by E. M. Harding of Grand Prairie.

The chickens are from an incubator hatching of 100 eggs, all of the other chicks being normal, according to Mr. Harding. Both were very much alive, despite their grotesque deformities, and seemed to be unworried by their misfortunes.

Texas Crop Conditions

Dallas, June 11.—Rainfall was well distributed and plentiful during May in that section of the state lying north of a line east and west through Galveston and San Antonio; below this line there were local showers only. The growth of all crops, owing to freezes, drouth and irregular rains, is very uneven, their condition being nearest normal in the Red river and other northern counties, where the wheat and oat harvest is beginning. A number of counties in southeast central Texas which escaped material damage from the April freeze, have favorable crop prospects. In the central counties, cotton and corn are very backward. The condition of these crops in the state as a whole is such that with sufficient general rainfall during the next six weeks an average yield will mature.

A great peanut crop, aggregating nearly a quarter of a million acres, is indicated in reports to the Texas Industrial congress. The crop is largely in "patches," a condition favorable to its utilization as feed.

Much interest is being shown in tick eradication in connection with the introduction into the state of fine beef and dairy cattle, at Wichita Falls, Abilene, Houston and several east Texas points.

Northwest Texas. (North of the Texas & Pacific railroad and west of the Santa Fe out of Fort Worth.) The rainfall has been ample, but cool and cloudy weather has delayed growth of corn and cotton. The wheat and oat crop in the plains section promise almost full yields, the earlier estimates of losses from winter-killing proving erroneous. The yield in the lower counties will be from sixty to seventy-five per cent of normal. The oat acreage is large, owing to the winter-killed small grains having been replaced with spring oats. About thirty-five thousand acres of peanuts have been planted in the south plains counties and the counties lying east of the south plains.

Grain sorghum crops over an area fully equal to that of 1915, were planted during the month. Sudan grass for a hay crop is becoming popular in the Trans-Canadian counties.

The cattle range is in good condition.

Northeast Texas. (East of the Santa Fe railroad from Fort Worth to Gainesville and east of the Trinity river down to the 31st parallel.) Plentiful to excessive rains have brought the corn and cotton crops fairly well along. Good crops of fruit, truck, sweet potatoes and tomatoes are in prospect. The Irish potato crop will be fair, and the wheat and oat yield in the black land counties better than expected. The cotton acreage is fifteen to twenty per cent greater than last year, and the crop is relatively further along than elsewhere in the state. Growth has been delayed somewhat by cold, cloudy weather, and the fields have become weedy because they were too wet to work; work has been coming along fast, however, in the last week. Good crops of berries have been marketed and the first of a fair crop of tomatoes is coming in. About sixty thousand acres of peanuts have been planted.

Central Texas. (South of the Texas & Pacific railroad and west of the Trinity river, and bounded on the southeast and west by a line running from Madisonville through Brenham to San Antonio and thence to Abilene.) This section has had good general rains, merging into local rains in the southern part. In the counties east of a line from Austin to San Antonio, where the rainfall has been seasonable, the crops have had little interruption.

The wheat and oat crops in the upper counties are now being harvested, and the yield will be about half for wheat and three-fourths to a full yield for oats. Cotton in the north central counties is coming up well, and is ready to chop. Corn is six inches to a foot high in this section, but farther south is about waist high. The outlook for both of these crops depends entirely upon the rainfall they receive during June and the first part of July. In practically every county east of the black land belt good acreages of peanuts have been planted, with increased areas in the great peanut counties southwest of Fort Worth. Altogether, between one hundred and twenty and one hundred and fifty thousand acres of peanuts have been planted.

Southeast Texas. (Territory lying between central Texas and the gulf, and south of the 31st parallel and east of a line from San Antonio south to the Rio Grande.) The northeastern counties have fared fairly well with respect to moisture, especially during the general rain of May 22-24, and their fruit, truck, potatoes and staple field crops are for the most part in good condition. The rice crop is planted and sugar cane is doing well.

The lower counties are, for the most part, suffering from a severe long continued drouth, although some areas have been able to bring their crops forward through rapid, thorough cultivation in connection with timely local rains. About twenty thousand acres of peanuts are being planted.

Range conditions are generally not good, and in many counties are very bad.

Southwest Texas. (South of the Texas & Pacific railroad and west of a line from Abilene through San Antonio to the Rio Grande.) Range conditions generally are not good, the whole section, except the counties on the Concho river, needing rain. The Laredo country has shipped a large crop of onions to St. Louis for distribution among the northern and eastern cities.

(Crop Bulletin No. 4, Texas Industrial Congress.)

Agricultural Department Reports Crop Conditions

The weekly news letter of the Texas state department of agriculture for the week ending June 3, 1916, is as follows:

Victoria, De Witt, Goliad, Jackson, Wharton: My information from bankers, merchants and many others, and my own observation over the territory covered, shows a prosperous condition. Native grasses are good. Stock of all kinds look well as far down as Goliad. Crops, consisting of corn, cotton, sorghum and peanuts, especially around Edna, Ganado, Louise, all look well. Corn, in most farms, is late and may not do well. It is dependent upon the amount of rainfall during the growing period from this time on.

Harris, Waller, Austin, Lavaca and Colorado: There was no rain in this section of the state during the past week. All crops looking very promising and farmers and business men are looking cheerfully into the future.

Cucumber and tomota crops, which I had special occasion to carefully investigate, are in prime condition; pickling cucumbers promise an abundant yield. Farmers are just beginning to bring them in. Early market cucumbers for slicing are now moving and are bringing good prices—$1 for a two-thirds bushel crate. This is net. Tomatoes are just well turning and are bringing from $1 to $1.25 per one-third bushel crate.

Titus, Morris, Cass, Bowie and Marion: Cass county has 90 per cent of a normal crop for corn, cotton, peanuts, ribbon cane, peas and sweet potatoes. Oats and Irish potatoes are not so good. Morris county has 85 per cent; the other counties will run about with the above two, except the northern part of Titus; the corn in this section is not as good as in the southern part of this and the other counties. The weather has been unfavorable, dry and some little hot winds; the crops of all kinds are beginning to need rain. The week closed dry and warm. In the northern part of Titus county the chinch bugs have damaged the corn badly. In many fields the corn is small and yellow, and if rain does not come right soon, the corn crop will be very short in this part of Titus county.

San Patricio, Nueces and Aransas counties: General farm crops in San Patricio, Nueces and Aransas counties are not more than five per cent normal on account of the drouth that has prevailed here since last October. Here and there are to be found small fields of corn, grain sorghum and cotton that were planted on lands prepared before the last October rains, and have been tilled so as to conserve the moisture, but the yield will not amount to the cost incident to their production. Most of the fields are as barren as a desert. Around Rockport and Ingleside, where shallow wells for irrigation supplement dry farming methods, truck growers are marketing fair yields of tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers, squash, okra, egg plant, etc., at good prices. All over this dry section the one cheerful note comes from the bee men, who report good yields of honey of a most excellent quality, especially where the mesquite timber grows. Cattle are being shipped out of the county by train loads to fresh pasture elsewhere.

Angelina and Cherokee counties: Weather conditions fine. No rain in two weeks, and farmers are getting crops in good shape. Corn on redlands beginning to need rain. All crops growing rapidly. Oats are being harvested and yield about 60 per cent. Tomatoes are being marketed rapidly. Quality good and prices good. The first car from Alto loaded by the East Texas Fruit and Truck Growers' association, brought $1.70 per crate; selling Saturday, the 3rd, at $1.35 per crate.

Lamar county: The last week in Lamar county has been warm and dry. The light showers Monday were not enough to provide crops. Corn particularly is needing rain. Cotton is not hurting for moisture yet. All fields are green, gardens, though needing rain, are holding up very well. Some farmers are cutting oats; the yield is very light. The putting out of sweet potato slips is retarded on account of exceedingly dry weather.

Denton, Grayson, Collin and Dallas counties: Crop report of North Texas. The wheat crop is turning out better, compared with last year. Wheat 95 per cent; oats 80 per cent; corn 85 per cent; all are doing well, and did all their growing last week.

Cotton 75 per cent, acreage 15 per cent over last year in all North Texas, I think. We are still planting cotton. Very good stands up, cutting to stand going on in all parts. Crops all about clean; all look well and growing fine.

Wheat cutting and oats are in full going order north of the T. and P. railroad. The Irish potato crop is not good; about 75 per cent compared with last year. Gardens all good; much cabbage, onions, beans and many good things in gardens to eat. The people have found out that half of the living is out of the garden.

The fruit crop is doing well in all parts. The blackberries and small fruit crops are doing well and the people have a mind to eat and work in all parts of the land. The sweet potato crop will be increased 20 per cent in North Texas over last year. Sweet potatoes look fine; good stands. The chicken crop is doing very well. The crop is something like 20 per cent over last year, and the little fellows are selling for twenty cents a pound at the doors. Butter at fifteen cents and eggs at ten cents per dozen. Cattle and hogs, horses, mules and all farm stock are doing well. Good health and no loss anywhere. Conditions are better all over the country; something like 25 per cent over last year.

Leon, Robertson, Milam, Williamson and Travis: Condition of corn much improved, but in many places the stalk is still small. Oats now being harvested; the yield is below normal. Forage crops are doing well. Condition of cotton is much improved; planting is about done and late planting is coming to a stand. Truck crops are in fair condition, but late. No rainfall during the week. Temperature is above normaal. Weather conditions are ideal for growing crops and for harvesting oats.

GROW COWPEAS.

(Farmer's Fireside Bulletin)

Now is the time to be thinking about planting just the cowpeas you have or can get. Plant them in the corn. You have no doubt given plenty of space between the rows. In running around the crop the second or third time and breaking middles run a dropper through the center. By the time the corn is ready for the third working the peas are up so that you can straddle them with a spring-tooth cultivator, and thus work both corn and peas. After corn gets up this large it does not need and should not have any more plowing; use a cultivaotr altogether. The pea crop will run from five to ten bushels an acre, and they have cost almost no extra work, save the trouble of planting and gathering. Nor is the pea crop itself all. There will be a tone or more of vines in the fall for turning under. There will be a ton or more of roots, and full of nitrogen bacteria, if you have taken the trouble and gone to the little expense, about $1 an acre, to inoculate the peas before planting. A pea crop should be an inevitable attendant of a corn crop. And the enriching of your soil will be great.

Rain Improved Toamto Crop.

Willis.—An electrical storm, accompanied by wind and rain, struck Willis at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning. The rain will be good for the tomatoes, making a top crop.

Growers will increase the acreage to 1,000 acres next year as the profit has been about $250 an acre.

Heavy Rain at Palestine.

Palestine.—This city was visited by an electrical and hailstorm Tuesday night, followed by a heavy rain, which lasted until Wednesday. The rain was general over the country, and crops will be benefited.

¶ Livestock Notes ¶

Hill County Plans to Raise More Hogs

(Hillsboro Mirror.)

An important meeting was held in Hillsboro Tuesday to discuss the best plans to encourage the raising of hogs and then more hogs in Hill county. This meeting was attended by enthusiasts, all of whom enjoy ham and eggs and breakfast bacon and desire to eat only home grown products. What they want is more and better hogs, especially more of them. H-o-g-s spells hogs, and also spells prosperity for the man that raises them, and these enthusiasts want to see every citizen of Hill county who dwells on a farm prosperous.

It was decided the best possible way to encourage the increased production of hogs was to get the men of Hill county gathered around some pens holding the best specimens of different breeds and have practical hog men talk about them and explain the merits of each breed, and the best way to do this was to put a good hog man, one who has made a success at the business, at the head of the hog department of the Hill county fair and have him gather an exhibit of the best of each breed, and get experts to show them up.

Of course, there was only one nomination and R. E. Sparkman of Irene has undertaken the job. He has promised to have an exhibition of the best breeds there and have the president of the International Duroc-Jersey association and the president of the Texas Swine Breeders' association present. Special attention will be given the Hill county hogs but as the Hill county fair comes one week ahead of the Dallas fair it is thought a good exhibit of hogs can be secured for our fair anyhow, with Bob Sparkman at the head of this department it is assured there will be a good hog exhibit at the Hill county fair.

SILAGE AND BEEF.

(National Stockman and Farmer.)

After many years of experience dairymen are practically unanimous in the conviction that the silo is essential to the success of their business. For a long time many who sold milk to condensaries were forbidden to feed silage, but the condensers saw the light at last and that prohibition was abolished. We know only one man in this broad land who thinks that silage makes bad milk. He caught that delusion years ago and has never been able to get it out of his system.

Those who raise or finish beef cattle have been slower to take up the silo, partly because it was supposed for years to belong to the dairy industry only. But trials made at many places in recent years have shown beyond question the value of the silo to the beefmaker, whether he is a cattle raiser or a cattle feeder. The case is too clear to admit of doubt; the cattle have proved it, the checks from the commission man have established it, and the carcasses on the hooks have not disputed it. In the recent Pennsylvania experiments was one lot of steers fed on silage and cottonseed meal exclusively. They sold right along with cattle receiving a much more costly ration. And when hung up their carcasses suited the slaughterers as well as any. They did show a slightly heavier shrink from the feed-lot to the slaughter house than steers which had more grain, but this slight disadvantage was much more than made up by the economy of their rations throughout.

CATTLE DYING OF CHARBON.

Disease Spreading and Health Officer Is Helpless.

With charbon raging over the country any many deaths among stock being reported, the county is not in position to combat the onslaught of the disease, according to Dr. J. S. Price, Jefferson county health officer. Dr. Price said last night that it was up to the stockmen to suppress the spread of charbon; that they knew what to do and they should do something. He said there was no money available to work with, the last appropriation that of the state, having been used up year before last. He said that when there was money he did all he could to educate the stockmen and he believed they were all familiar with what was necessary to prevent its spread. Cattle must be burned when they die of the disease, he said. Vaccination is a protection among the dairy herds and mules and horses, but it would be practically impossible to vaccinate a large herd ranging over the prairies, he said. He said he could do nothing without money.

Charbon has been reported in various parts of the country and deaths among cattle have been numerous. The rain will, in a measure, help to stamp out the disease, Dr. Price says, but the cattlemen themselves must do the rest.

400 BUCKS BROUGHT FROM UTAH.

(San Angelo Standard.)

Four hundred registered Rambouillette bucks, raised in the mountains of Utah, arrived in San Angelo Tuesday morning, consigned to Dan T. Hanks. The sheep were purchased from John K. Madsen and are to be sold for breeding purposes. They were brought into this section early in order that they might become acclimated before September.

The bucks are said to be among the finest ever seen here. Their late pastures have been in mountains 7,500 feet high.

W. B. HERRING FINDS HOGS VERY PROFITABLE

(Hillsboro Mirror.)

He related to the Mirror county representative his experience with five Duroc-Jersey gilts and a male which is interesting. These hogs, he figures, made him $350 counting pigs sold—meat hogs at market price on foot and the stock he had on hand at the close of the year.

Mr. Herring has about 100 acres under hog fence and expects to pasture a good deal of his place this year as soon as the crops are gathered. Last year he fed two acres of maize and two acres of peanuts to his hogs and about twenty bushels of corn as they made the large part of their living from running in the potato fields after potaatoes were dug.

This year Mr. Herring had three fine gilts, two of these he put on pasture, the third was put up in a small pen with plenty of feed and those that were run on pasture are so much larger than the other that they do not look to be the same age by several months.

Mr. Herring will have fifteen acres in sweet potatoes this year, also several acres in melons.

JUST A CALF.

(Comanche Chief.)

Ollie Allen last week shipped a three-months-old calf which brought on the market $20 and a few cents. It is supposed that the calf could have cost but very little. The home raising of good cattle is one of the coming industries of the county. This is but one example but is an exceptional calf.

HIGH PRICE FOR CATTLE.

(Georgetown Commercial.)

Messrs. W. O. Woodley and John R. Taylor purchased this week and shipped to St. Louis twenty head of grass-fattened cattle, which tipped the scales at 1,303 1-2 pound each. These cattle were bought near Round Rock and were fattened entirely on the grass. The price paid was $100 per head.

COWS BOUGHT AND SOLD.

(San Angelo Standard.)

The sale of 100 cows and calves and the purchase of two hundred more was reported Tuesday by W. C. Wylie, local stockman. The cows and calves were sold to Chester L. Jones of Rule, Texas, at $75 per round. There were 125 cows and calves in the bunch of two hundred animals purchased from Robert Massie.

WILL STORE WATER.

(San Angelo Standard.)

A water storage tank, twenty feet in diameter and ten feet high, is to be erected this week on the ranch of Dan McCrohan southwest of Christoval. Theodore Montgomery has the contract which amounts to $400. The work will require about six days.

FARMERS TO ATTEND INSTITUTE

(Beaumont Journal)

Indications are that a number of Jefferson county farmers will attend the state farmers' institute at Austin July 17, 18 and 19.

Advices from Austin are to the effect that State Commissioner of Agriculture Fred W. Davis is rapidly completing plans for the institute, which he believes will be the most interesting and successful one yet held.

Commissioner Davis makes it clear that the meeting will not be a "junketing" trip and will be one strictly for business. It is expected fully 4000 delegates will attend.

EXHIBITS LOADED BRANCH FROM TEXAS SEEDING APPLE

(Denton Record-Chronicle)

R. H. Hoffman was at the Record-Chronicle office Thursday afternoon and showed a twelve-inch branch from a Texas seeding apple tree and in that space thirty-five young apples were counted, being as thick as plums. The tree has been bearing for three or four years and every favorable year has been similarly loaded. The apple originated in Texas, having first been produced by an orchardist at Paradise, Texas. Mr. Hoffman stated the apple was a big yellow one when ripe.

FIRST TOMATOES OF THE SEASON

(Tyler Courier-Times)

The first tomatoes of the season were brought to this city this week by Ed Shuford, living two miles south of the city, and bought by Holt and Swann at $1.50 per crate. Several more crates were brought to the city today. The price is still good—in fact, you might call $1.50 per crate a fancy price, it being equal to about $4.50 per bushel for tomatoes.

Holt and Swann also bought the first roasting ears of the season. They were raised by Mr. J. W. Whisnant, a well known farmer living east of the city.

Tomatoes and roasting ears should be plentiful within the next few days.

Strawberry Crop Worth $20,000,000.

New York.—This year's strawberry crop will be worth $20,000,000 to the growers, exceeding all previous records, it is estimated in a summary of the crop condition published today by the educational department of the National City bank. The crop will contain 300,000,000 quarts. Maryland held the lead as a producing state in 1909, but since that Tennessee, Arkansas and Louisiana have passed her.

The total annual fruit production of the country amounts to about $250,000,000 annually, the summary says.

North Concho Fruit Crop Heavy Yield.

San Angelo.—The 1916 fruit crop on the North Concho is said to be the best in years. Some of the pears already are grown and it is said that many trees will yield as much as a wagonload each. Other smaller fruit is doing exceptionally well. Most of this fruit is grown on irrigated land.

PROSPECTS NOT GOOD FOR FEED CROPS

College Station, Texas, June 11.—Crop conditions in Texas at the moment are not as promising for food and feed as they were at this time last year.

The five district agents of farm demonstration work of the A. and M. college and United States department of agriculture met for conference at College Station last week. It was the consensus of opinion of these men, whose districts cover all parts of the state, that there is a probability of a short feed crop this year. One fact in evidence is the increased acreage in cotton and another is that the sentiment for feed crops this year for some reason is not as strong as last year. The next three weeks is a very critical period with the corn crop. The stalk is small, and even the best cultivation cannot produce a maximum crop. Also weather conditions have not been favorable this spring for a full crop of corn. Therefore, the necessity arises for planting peas, sorghum, peanuts and June corn to make up this prospective shortage.

It is good business in farming to hedge against a loss, either partial or total, in one crop by planting a substitute. These substitute crops can be planted with safety up to June 25. The farmers of the state will make a crop cheaper this year than in several years past, because they have plenty of their own feed, and they should profit by this year's experience.

All interests concerned in agricultural welfare are urged to bring these facts immediately to the attention of the farmers.

CLARENCE OUSLEY,
Director of Extension.

ROTATING OF CROPS SAVES GARDEN SOIL

(Tyler Courier-Times)

Crop rotation should be practiced by every gardener in order to maintain a high degree of soil efficiency, says F. S. Merrill, assistant in horticulture in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

"Soil elements which are lacking may be supplied by expensive fertilizers," says Merrill, "but a cheaper way is to plant a crop with a different food requirement that will replace the exhausted elements.

"Rotation tends to even up the soil—on one element of plant food is exhausted. All crops need humus in the soil and this is the way to get it. In some years green crops should be turned under, thus furnishing an almost immediately available plant food and a large supply of nitrogen.

"Every person should have a regular plan of rotation for his garden, covering a period of three or four years, because no crop should be returned to the soil oftener than every three years. In this way the same amount of all vegetables may be grown one year after another. The plan requires that the plots of ground be the same size.

"In general, one crop should follow another of a different family. For example, potatoes may be followed by beans, peas or cabbage. One plot may be put in sweet corn for two years and then follow by two years of potatoes. Weeds are less difficult to control when crop rotation is practised. Liability of insect injury and fungus disease is reduced."

DENTON COUNTY POULTRY RALLIES

(Record and Chronicle)

The poultry rallies that have been held over the county this week under the direction of the diversification and marketing association, assisted by R. M. Elliott and Mr. McKnight of College Station, closed here Friday afternoon with a county rally at the court house, opening at 2:30 o'clock. The rallies have been held to encourage the growing interest in the poultry industry in the county and for securing a poultry packing plant for Denton. Mr. Elliott and Mr. McKnight have been accompanied on the speaking tour of the county by Dr. W. L. Cowan, G. H. Stallings and W. F. Craddock.

The speakers worked in two parties on a separate itinerary during the week and covered a large part of the county. They had good crowds at every place and their talks were received with interest by those engaged in the poultry business and others interested and planning to enter it. A joint meeting was held by the two parties at Krum Tuesday afternoon and another of the joint meetings is being held at Pilot Point. The meetings over the county close with speeches at Little Elm and Cooper. The plans for the packing plant have been explained at each of the meetings and several shares of stock have been sold over the county.

A CREED FOR PROGRESSIVE FARMERS

(Progressive Farmer)

I believe in myself—believe that whatever mistakes I may or may not have made heretofore, I am endowed with limitless possibilities for growth, struggle, triumph and development—making each today better than its yesterday and each tomorrow better than today.

I believe in my work—believe it offers opportunities as an industry, requiring faithful labor; as a profession, requiring scientific knowledge; as a business, requiring commercial ability—each with its challenge and its reward.

I believe in my farm—believe I can make it rich with stored fertility; believe I can make it beautiful with well kept fields, luxuriant crops and grazing herds; and believe that the homestead, whether cottage or mansion, can be made glorious with a wealth of tree and vine and shrub and blossom.

I believe in my family—believe that love in the home is God's best gift on earth, and that to rear noble sons and daughters—with strong bodies, trained minds, clean hearts and cheerful spirits—is the highest achievement in life.

I believe in my neighborhood—believe that by keeping everlastingly at it I can get such co-operation from young and old as to make it a better and better place to live in; and that whether neighbors help or hinder, it is my duty to give some thought every day and do some work every week for the improvement of schools, roads, churches, social life, business co-operation, and all the agencies of rural comradeship and brotherhood, knowing that sooner or later the sowing will bring its harvest.

And finally, I believe in my Creator and Father—believe it is His will that His kingdom should come on earth, and come here in my own particular nook of earth, and that in my every aspiration toward this end, I am a coworker with Him whose power knows no defeat.

Two Freak Grand Prairie Chickens.

Two freak chickens—one with a bill crossed like a pair of scissors, and with only one eye, and the other with no eyes, and no place for them, were exhibited at The Dallas Journal office by E. M. Harding of Grand Prairie.

The chickens are from an incubator hatching of 100 eggs, all of the other chicks being normal, according to Mr. Harding. Both were very much alive, despite their grotesque deformities, and seemed to be unworried by their misfortunes.

Texas Crop Conditions

Dallas, June 11.—Rainfall was well distributed and plentiful during May in that section of the state lying north of a line east and west through Galveston and San Antonio; below this line there were local showers only. The growth of all crops, owing to freezes, drouth and irregular rains, is very uneven, their condition being nearest normal in the Red river and other northern counties, where the wheat and oat harvest is beginning. A number of counties in southeast central Texas which escaped material damage from the April freeze, have favorable crop prospects. In the central counties, cotton and corn are very backward. The condition of these crops in the state as a whole is such that with sufficient general rainfall during the next six weeks an average yield will mature.

A great peanut crop, aggregating nearly a quarter of a million acres, is indicated in reports to the Texas Industrial congress. The crop is largely in "patches," a condition favorable to its utilization as feed.

Much interest is being shown in tick eradication in connection with the introduction into the state of fine beef and dairy cattle, at Wichita Falls, Abilene, Houston and several east Texas points.

Northwest Texas. (North of the Texas & Pacific railroad and west of the Santa Fe out of Fort Worth.) The rainfall has been ample, but cool and cloudy weather has delayed growth of corn and cotton. The wheat and oat crop in the plains section promise almost full yields, the earlier estimates of losses from winter-killing proving erroneous. The yield in the lower counties will be from sixty to seventy-five per cent of normal. The oat acreage is large, owing to the winter-killed small grains having been replaced with spring oats. About thirty-five thousand acres of peanuts have been planted in the south plains counties and the counties lying east of the south plains.

Grain sorghum crops over an area fully equal to that of 1915, were planted during the month. Sudan grass for a hay crop is becoming popular in the Trans-Canadian counties.

The cattle range is in good condition.

Northeast Texas. (East of the Santa Fe railroad from Fort Worth to Gainesville and east of the Trinity river down to the 31st parallel.) Plentiful to excessive rains have brought the corn and cotton crops fairly well along. Good crops of fruit, truck, sweet potatoes and tomatoes are in prospect. The Irish potato crop will be fair, and the wheat and oat yield in the black land counties better than expected. The cotton acreage is fifteen to twenty per cent greater than last year, and the crop is relatively further along than elsewhere in the state. Growth has been delayed somewhat by cold, cloudy weather, and the fields have become weedy because they were too wet to work; work has been coming along fast, however, in the last week. Good crops of berries have been marketed and the first of a fair crop of tomatoes is coming in. About sixty thousand acres of peanuts have been planted.

Central Texas. (South of the Texas & Pacific railroad and west of the Trinity river, and bounded on the southeast and west by a line running from Madisonville through Brenham to San Antonio and thence to Abilene.) This section has had good general rains, merging into local rains in the southern part. In the counties east of a line from Austin to San Antonio, where the rainfall has been seasonable, the crops have had little interruption.

The wheat and oat crops in the upper counties are now being harvested, and the yield will be about half for wheat and three-fourths to a full yield for oats. Cotton in the north central counties is coming up well, and is ready to chop. Corn is six inches to a foot high in this section, but farther south is about waist high. The outlook for both of these crops depends entirely upon the rainfall they receive during June and the first part of July. In practically every county east of the black land belt good acreages of peanuts have been planted, with increased areas in the great peanut counties southwest of Fort Worth. Altogether, between one hundred and twenty and one hundred and fifty thousand acres of peanuts have been planted.

Southeast Texas. (Territory lying between central Texas and the gulf, and south of the 31st parallel and east of a line from San Antonio south to the Rio Grande.) The northeastern counties have fared fairly well with respect to moisture, especially during the general rain of May 22-24, and their fruit, truck, potatoes and staple field crops are for the most part in good condition. The rice crop is planted and sugar cane is doing well.

The lower counties are, for the most part, suffering from a severe long continued drouth, although some areas have been able to bring their crops forward through rapid, thorough cultivation in connection with timely local rains. About twenty thousand acres of peanuts are being planted.

Range conditions are generally not good, and in many counties are very bad.

Southwest Texas. (South of the Texas & Pacific railroad and west of a line from Abilene through San Antonio to the Rio Grande.) Range conditions generally are not good, the whole section, except the counties on the Concho river, needing rain. The Laredo country has shipped a large crop of onions to St. Louis for distribution among the northern and eastern cities.

(Crop Bulletin No. 4, Texas Industrial Congress.)

Agricultural Department Reports Crop Conditions

The weekly news letter of the Texas state department of agriculture for the week ending June 3, 1916, is as follows:

Victoria, De Witt, Goliad, Jackson, Wharton: My information from bankers, merchants and many others, and my own observation over the territory covered, shows a prosperous condition. Native grasses are good. Stock of all kinds look well as far down as Goliad. Crops, consisting of corn, cotton, sorghum and peanuts, especially around Edna, Ganado, Louise, all look well. Corn, in most farms, is late and may not do well. It is dependent upon the amount of rainfall during the growing period from this time on.

Harris, Waller, Austin, Lavaca and Colorado: There was no rain in this section of the state during the past week. All crops looking very promising and farmers and business men are looking cheerfully into the future.

Cucumber and tomota crops, which I had special occasion to carefully investigate, are in prime condition; pickling cucumbers promise an abundant yield. Farmers are just beginning to bring them in. Early market cucumbers for slicing are now moving and are bringing good prices—$1 for a two-thirds bushel crate. This is net. Tomatoes are just well turning and are bringing from $1 to $1.25 per one-third bushel crate.

Titus, Morris, Cass, Bowie and Marion: Cass county has 90 per cent of a normal crop for corn, cotton, peanuts, ribbon cane, peas and sweet potatoes. Oats and Irish potatoes are not so good. Morris county has 85 per cent; the other counties will run about with the above two, except the northern part of Titus; the corn in this section is not as good as in the southern part of this and the other counties. The weather has been unfavorable, dry and some little hot winds; the crops of all kinds are beginning to need rain. The week closed dry and warm. In the northern part of Titus county the chinch bugs have damaged the corn badly. In many fields the corn is small and yellow, and if rain does not come right soon, the corn crop will be very short in this part of Titus county.

San Patricio, Nueces and Aransas counties: General farm crops in San Patricio, Nueces and Aransas counties are not more than five per cent normal on account of the drouth that has prevailed here since last October. Here and there are to be found small fields of corn, grain sorghum and cotton that were planted on lands prepared before the last October rains, and have been tilled so as to conserve the moisture, but the yield will not amount to the cost incident to their production. Most of the fields are as barren as a desert. Around Rockport and Ingleside, where shallow wells for irrigation supplement dry farming methods, truck growers are marketing fair yields of tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers, squash, okra, egg plant, etc., at good prices. All over this dry section the one cheerful note comes from the bee men, who report good yields of honey of a most excellent quality, especially where the mesquite timber grows. Cattle are being shipped out of the county by train loads to fresh pasture elsewhere.

Angelina and Cherokee counties: Weather conditions fine. No rain in two weeks, and farmers are getting crops in good shape. Corn on redlands beginning to need rain. All crops growing rapidly. Oats are being harvested and yield about 60 per cent. Tomatoes are being marketed rapidly. Quality good and prices good. The first car from Alto loaded by the East Texas Fruit and Truck Growers' association, brought $1.70 per crate; selling Saturday, the 3rd, at $1.35 per crate.

Lamar county: The last week in Lamar county has been warm and dry. The light showers Monday were not enough to provide crops. Corn particularly is needing rain. Cotton is not hurting for moisture yet. All fields are green, gardens, though needing rain, are holding up very well. Some farmers are cutting oats; the yield is very light. The putting out of sweet potato slips is retarded on account of exceedingly dry weather.

Denton, Grayson, Collin and Dallas counties: Crop report of North Texas. The wheat crop is turning out better, compared with last year. Wheat 95 per cent; oats 80 per cent; corn 85 per cent; all are doing well, and did all their growing last week.

Cotton 75 per cent, acreage 15 per cent over last year in all North Texas, I think. We are still planting cotton. Very good stands up, cutting to stand going on in all parts. Crops all about clean; all look well and growing fine.

Wheat cutting and oats are in full going order north of the T. and P. railroad. The Irish potato crop is not good; about 75 per cent compared with last year. Gardens all good; much cabbage, onions, beans and many good things in gardens to eat. The people have found out that half of the living is out of the garden.

The fruit crop is doing well in all parts. The blackberries and small fruit crops are doing well and the people have a mind to eat and work in all parts of the land. The sweet potato crop will be increased 20 per cent in North Texas over last year. Sweet potatoes look fine; good stands.

The chicken crop is doing very well. The crop is something like 20 per cent over last year, and the little fellows are selling for twenty cents a pound at the doors. Butter at fifteen cents and eggs at ten cents per dozen. Cattle and hogs, horses, mules and all farm stock are doing well. Good health and no loss anywhere. Conditions are better all over the country; something like 25 per cent over last year.

Leon, Robertson, Milam, Williamson and Travis: Condition of corn much improved, but in many places the stalk is still small. Oats now being harvested; the yield is below normal. Forage crops are doing well. Condition of cotton is much improved; planting is about done and late planting is coming to a stand. Truck crops are in fair condition, but late. No rainfall during the week. Temperature is above normaal. Weather conditions are ideal for growing crops and for harvesting oats.

GROW COWPEAS.

(Farmer's Fireside Bulletin)

Now is the time to be thinking about planting just the cowpeas you have or can get. Plant them in the corn. You have no doubt given plenty of space between the rows. In running around the crop the second or third time and breaking middles run a dropper through the center. By the time the corn is ready for the third working the peas are up so that you can straddle them with a spring-tooth cultivator, and thus work both corn and peas. After corn gets up this large it does not need and should not have any more plowing; use a cultivaotr altogether. The pea crop will run from five to ten bushels an acre, and they have cost almost no extra work, save the trouble of planting and gathering. Nor is the pea crop itself all. There will be a tone or more of vines in the fall for turning under. There will be a ton or more of roots, and full of nitrogen bacteria, if you have taken the trouble and gone to the little expense, about $1 an acre, to inoculate the peas before planting. A pea crop should be an inevitable attendant of a corn crop. And the enriching of your soil will be great.

Rain Improved Toamto Crop.

Willis.—An electrical storm, accompanied by wind and rain, struck Willis at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning. The rain will be good for the tomatoes, making a top crop.

Growers will increase the acreage to 1,000 acres next year as the profit has been about $250 an acre.

Heavy Rain at Palestine.

Palestine.—This city was visited by an electrical and hailstorm Tuesday night, followed by a heavy rain, which lasted until Wednesday. The rain was general over the country, and crops will be benefited.

¶ Livestock Notes ¶

Hill County Plans to Raise More Hogs

(Hillsboro Mirror.)

An important meeting was held in Hillsboro Tuesday to discuss the best plans to encourage the raising of hogs and then more hogs in Hill county. This meeting was attended by enthusiasts, all of whom enjoy ham and eggs and breakfast bacon and desire to eat only home grown products. What they want is more and better hogs, especially more of them. H-o-g-s spells hogs, and also spells prosperity for the man that raises them, and these enthusiasts want to see every citizen of Hill county who dwells on a farm prosperous.

It was decided the best possible way to encourage the increased production of hogs was to get the men of Hill county gathered around some pens holding the best specimens of different breeds and have practical hog men talk about them and explain the merits of each breed, and the best way to do this was to put a good hog man, one who has made a success at the business, at the head of the hog department of the Hill county fair and have him gather an exhibit of the best of each breed, and get experts to show them up.

Of course, there was only one nomination and R. E. Sparkman of Irene has undertaken the job. He has promised to have an exhibition of the best breeds there and have the president of the International Duroc-Jersey association and the president of the Texas Swine Breeders' association present. Special attention will be given the Hill county hogs but as the Hill county fair comes one week ahead of the Dallas fair it is thought a good exhibit of hogs can be secured for our fair anyhow, with Bob Sparkman at the head of this department it is assured there will be a good hog exhibit at the Hill county fair.

SILAGE AND BEEF.

(National Stockman and Farmer.)

After many years of experience dairymen are practically unanimous in the conviction that the silo is essential to the success of their business. For a long time many who sold milk to condensaries were forbidden to feed silage, but the condensers saw the light at last and that prohibition was abolished. We know only one man in this broad land who thinks that silage makes bad milk. He caught that delusion years ago and has never been able to get it out of his system. Those who raise or finish beef cattle have been slower to take up the silo, partly because it was supposed for years to belong to the dairy industry only. But trials made at many places in recent years have shown beyond question the value of the silo to the beefmaker, whether he is a cattle raiser or a cattle feeder. The case is too clear to admit of doubt; the cattle have proved it, the checks from the commission man have established it, and the carcasses on the hooks have not disputed it. In the recent Pennsylvania experiments was one lot of steers fed on silage and cottonseed meal exclusively. They sold right along with cattle receiving a much more costly ration. And when sung up their carcasses suited the slaughterers as well as any. They did show a slightly heavier shrink from the feed-lot to the slaughter house than steers which had more grain, but this slight disadvantage was much more than made up by the economy of their rations throughout.

CATTLE DYING OF CHARBON.

Disease Spreading and Health Officer Is Helpless.

With charbon raging over the country any many deaths among stock being reported, the county is not in position to combat the onslaught of the disease, according to Dr. J. S. Price, Jefferson county health officer. Dr. Price said last night that it was up to the stockmen to suppress the spread of charbon; that they knew what to do and they should do something. He said there was no money available to work with, the last appropriation that of the state, having been used up year before last. He said that when there was money he did all he could to educate the stockmen and he believed they were all familiar with what was necessary to prevent its spread. Cattle must be burned when they die of the disease, he said. Vaccination is a protection among the dairy herds and mules and horses, but it would be practically impossible to vaccinate a large herd ranging over the prairies, he said. He said he could do nothing without money.

Charbon has been reported in various parts of the country and deaths among cattle have been numerous. The rain will, in a measure, help to stamp out the disease, Dr. Price says, but the cattlemen themselves must do the rest.

400 SUCKS BROUGHT FROM UTAH.

(San Angelo Standard.)

Four hundred registered Rambouillette bucks, raised in the mountains of Utah, arrived in San Angelo Tuesday morning, consigned to Dan T. Hanks. The sheep were purchased from John K. Madsen and are to be sold for breeding purposes. They were brought into this section early in order that they might become acclimated before September.

The bucks are said to be among the finest ever seen here. Their late pastures have been in mountains 7,500 feet high.

W. B. HERRING FINDS HOGS VERY PROFITABLE

(Hillsboro Mirror.)

He related to the Mirror county representative his experience with five Duroc-Jersey gilts and a male which is interesting. These hogs, he figures, made him $350 counting pigs sold—meat hogs at market price on foot and the stock he had on hand at the close of the year.

Mr. Herring has about 100 acres under hog fence and expects to pasture a good deal of his place this year as soon as the crops are gathered. Last year he fed two acres of maize and two acres of peanuts to his hogs and about twenty bushels of corn as they made the large part of their living from running in the potato fields after potaatoes were dug.

This year Mr. Herring had three fine gilts, two of these he put on pasture, the third was put up in a small pen with plenty of feed and these that were run on pasture are so much larger than the other that they do not look to be the same age by several months.

Mr. Herring will have fifteen acres in sweet potatoes this year, also several acres in melons.

JUST A CALF.

(Comanche Chief.)

Ollie Allen last week shipped a three-months-old calf which brought on the market $28 and a few cents. It is supposed that the calf could have cost but very little. The home raising of good cattle is one of the coming industries of the county. This is but one example but is an exceptional calf.

HIGH PRICE FOR CATTLE.

(Georgetown Commercial.)

Messrs. W. O. Woodley and John R. Taylor purchased this week and shipped to St. Louis twenty head of grass-fattened cattle, which tipped the scales at 1,303 1-2 pound each. These cattle were bought near Round Rock and were fattened entirely on the grass. The price paid was $100 per head.

COWS BOUGHT AND SOLD.

(San Angelo Standard.)

The sale of 100 cows and calves and the purchase of two hundred more was reported Tuesday by W. C. Wylie, local stockman. The cows and calves were sold to Chester L. Jones of Rule, Texas, at $75 per round. There were 125 cows and calves in the bunch of two hundred animals purchased from Robert Massie.

A water storage tank, twenty feet in diameter and ten feet high, is to be erected this week on the ranch of Dan McCrohan southwest of Christoval. Theodore Montgomery has the contract which amounts to $400. The work will require about six days.

FARMERS TO ATTEND INSTITUTE

(Beaumont Journal)

Indications are that a number of Jefferson county farmers will attend the state farmers' institute at Austin July 17, 18 and 19.

Advices from Austin are to the effect that State Commissioner of Agriculture Fred W. Davis is rapidly completing plans for the institute, which he believes will be the most interesting and successful one yet held.

Commissioner Davis makes it clear that the meeting will not be a "junketing" trip and will be one strictly for business. It is expected fully 4000 delegates will attend.

EXHIBITS LOADED BRANCH FROM TEXAS SEEDING APPLE

(Denton Record-Chronicle)

R. H. Hoffman was at the Record-Chronicle office Thursday afternoon and showed a twelve-inch branch from a Texas seeding apple tree and in that space thirty-five young apples were counted, being as thick as plums. The tree has been bearing for three or four years and every favorable year has been similarly loaded. The apple originated in Texas, having first been produced by an orchardist at Paradise, Texas. Mr. Hoffman stated the apple was a big yellow one when ripe.

FIRST TOMATOES OF THE SEASON

(Tyler Courier-Times)

The first tomatoes of the season were brought to this city this week by Ed Shuford, living two miles south of the city, and bought by Holt and Swann at $1.50 per crate. Several more crates were brought to the city today. The price is still good—in fact, you might call $1.50 per crate a fancy price, it being equal to about $4.50 per bushel for tomatoes.

Holt and Swann also bought the first roasting ears of the season. They were raised by Mr. J. W. Whisnant, a well known farmer living east of the city.

Tomatoes and roasting ears should be plentiful within the next few days.

Strawberry Crop Worth $20,000,000.

New York.—This year's strawberry crop will be worth $20,000,000 to the growers, exceeding all previous records, it is estimated in a summary of the crop condition published today by the educational department of the National City bank. The crop will contain 300,000,000 quarts. Maryland held the lead as a producing state in 1909, but since that Tennessee, Arkansas and Louisiana have passed her.

The total annual fruit production of the country amounts to about $250,000,000 annually, the summary says.

North Concho Fruit Crop Heavy Yield.

San Angelo.—The 1916 fruit crop on the North Concho is said to be the best in years. Some of the pears already are grown and it is said that many trees will yield as much as a wagon-load each. Other smaller fruit is doing exceptionally well. Most of this fruit is grown on irrigated land.

Fitzpatrick's Place on Democratic Committee Unfilled

Frank M. Fitzpatrick's successor as secretary of the McLennan county democratic executive committee will probably be named within the next few days, before the meeting of the committee on June 19. Mr. Fitzpatrick has tendered his formal resignation to Chairman H. E. Brown of Crawford, and has announced himself as a candidate for flotorial representative of the Sixty-third district, which includes McLennan, Falls and Limestone counties. Mr. Fitzpatrick's work as secretary of the committee has been very popular and his devotion to this public service has elicited many compliments from those who have had occasion to know of his work.

The committee will meet on June 19 to assess the amount each candidate shall pay. June 17 is the time limit for the county candidates to secure places on the ticket.

WEEKLY COTTON REVIEW.

New Orleans, June 11.—While the cotton market stood at the advance throughout last week no very important gains were scored and the close was at a net rise of 21 to 29 points. The highest prices were reached on Thursday when the trading months were 26 to 33 points above the previous week's close.

Bullish feeling was stimulated by the better feeling in the spot department where it claimed that the recent wide decline in ocean freight rates had stimulated the export demand. Shipments to foreign ports last week from all United States ports were 133,986 bales against 130,807 the previous week and 113,869 the same week last year.

Bearish traders were encouraged by the favorable weather over the belt and the appearance of the first bale of the new crop in Texas on June 8, a new record date.

During this week the trade will watch carefully for further developments in the spot situation.

MULLINS GETS BY LUCKILY

Navigators Slam Many Extra-Base Wallops But Lead Too Big to Overcome.

The worm turned yesterday. Houston, fresh from three straight defeats at the hands of the Dallas Giants, not only took a fall out of the Champs, but they made the fall decidedly hard. In two different innings the Buffs bunched hits off two Waco pitchers, the Navs threw in a few boots and wild heaves for good measure and the unsteady Mullins finished the game behind a breastworks the Navs couldn't see over. The score was 11 to 5 and the game was just as bad as it sounds.

An odd perversity seems to be following the local club in the Sunday games. A lot of the fans who work during the week and get to see but one game are unable to figure out how the team ever wins. Not only are the pitchers who work in the Sunday games unsteady and liberal with hits, but the club looks bad both at bat and in the field. Batters who break up games all week with their war clubs pop up or strike out with alarming regularity on Sunday. In fact, the Navs fall a long way short of being a Sunday ball club, and maybe it's just as well, except for the disappointment to the Sunday fans.

Red Causey started the game yesterday. He wasn't there with anything that bothered the Buffs. He was wild and when he fell back on his groove they hit it hard and in spots where Navs weren't. The first of these hits was made by Northen in the second inning—a long two-bagger to right center. Citrano sacrificed and Tullos registered the first run with a clean single over short.

Red managed to stall off Buff challenges in the third and fourth, but in the fifth, after Conwell had flagged a line drive by Allen, Mullen hit safely to right. Lee walked. Dodd hit the first ball pitched for a two-bagger, scoring Mullen. Frierson singled, scoring Lee. Hardy then derricked Causey and sent in Donalds, who took up the burden of box work with one out and first and third occupied. Eddie promptly got two strikes on Newnam, but the Buff foreman caught a low one on the end of his bat and put it down in the left-field corner, scoring Dodd. Northen flied out to deep right, sending Frierson in with the fourth run of the inning. Citrano retired the side by grounding out to Tanner.

The sixth inning was even worse than the fifth. Tullos and Allen singled in succession. Mullen popped up in attempting to bunt. Singles by Lee and Dodd were followed by a safe bunt by Frierson. The Nav defense crumpled under this broadside of hits and when Newnam grounded to Tanner the ball went through him. Not only that, but when it rolled out to Bittle the left-fielder took an extra kick at it. Then Northen hit to Malmquist and he made a bad throw to Tanner at second. During the bombardment and the blow-up five runs crossed the plate. The Navs managed to keep from becoming a joke by retiring the side on a fast double.

The extra Buff run came in the last inning when Hub Northen bumped the ball over the right-field fence.

In the meantime, after the fifth, Mullen was in a bit of trouble, in spite of his big lead. He went fine until he got nine runs to work behind, then he went wild. The locals in the last four innings made nine hits, five of them doubles. In two different innings they had three men left on bases, but every time it looked as if an old-time rally was coming up, the chance went glimmering by the pop-up route. This wasn't all due to good pitching by Mullins, either.

During the seventh and ninth, Mullins and his team were both nervous, but the handicap was too heavy.

With one down in the sixth, Kuhn doubled. Mullins walked Malmquist to get to Donalds, who doubled to right, scoring both.

An error, a two-bagger by Tanner and Kuhn's walk filled the bases with two down in the seventh, but the best Wohlleben could do was a drive which Newnam was able to handle.

Conwell and James doubled in succession in the ninth and Dodd's error let Kuhn on and Conwell score. Wohlleben was walked and James scored on Mal's sacrifice fly to center. Grubb went in as a pinch hitter for Donalds and singled, but Bittle ended the game by fouling out to Allen. The score:

Stark Cuts Up in Debut for Broncs

Fort Worth, Texas, June 11.—The Fort Worth Panthers, who have not won a Sunday game this season, lost a grueling affair here to San Antonio in the eleventh inning, 3 to 4. Errors and poor judgment on bases by the locals aided San Antonio to win. Dolly Stark, playing his first game with the visitors, batted in the winning run. He stole four bases. The score:

Bad Weather Hurts Big League Clubs

New York, June 11.—Postponements and games played ran close races in the National and American leagues during the past week. Bad weather played havoc with the playing schedules in both organizations. Eleven games played and thirteen postponements was the record in the national. The American had slightly better luck with sixteen games played and twelve postponements. There were no games at all in the National on Thursday and Friday.

As a result of the unfavorable weather conditions the standings in the two leagues show hardly any change from those of a week ago. The Chicago National league team was the only one in the two leagues to change its position materially, the Cubs advancing from seventh to fifth place.

In the National league the eastern and western teams were evenly matched. The Giants struck a snag in the Polo grounds. They lost the series to Cincinnati and lost the only game played in the Pittsburg series. The teams ended the week bunched closely, slightly more than 136 points separating St. Louis, in last place, from Brooklyn, in first place.

St. Louis, in the American league, ran its string of victories up to six before it was defeated Saturday by Boston.

Detroit won all four games played including three straight from Washington. The Senators' victory over Cleveland Friday was their first since May 27.

The week's play brought no change in the American league standing. Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis were the only teams to win more games than they lost.

CHAMPION PLAYS TOMORROW.

Philadelphia, June 11.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the national singles champion, will defend her title in the final round of the women's national tennis tournament tomorrow on the courts of the Philadelphia Cricket club. Her opponent will be Mrs. Edward Raymond of New York, former national champion, who won her way through the tournament here last week in an impressive manner.

HEMINGWAY TO SAN ANTONIO.

Memphis, June 11.—Announcement was made tonight that Leonard Dobard, former Mobile infielder, had been signed by the Memphis Southern club and Ed Hemingway, whom Dobard will replace had been sold to San Antonio of the Texas league.

Dario Resta Wins Big Speedway Event

Chicago, June 11.—Dario Resta today won the second annual speedway automobile derby race here, covering the 300 miles in three hours, two minutes and thirty-one seconds, an average speed of 98.8 miles an hour. His time was fifty seconds faster than he established for the same distance in last year's race here. Ralph DePalma was second, Christsen third, Vail fourth and O'Donnell fifth. The race was the most closely contested in which DePalma and Resta ever competed, the two drivers keeping their machines almost together and alternated in holding the leaders until two laps from the finish when DePalma met with engine trouble, costing him a possible victory.

The other cars that remained to the end of the contest had a close race among themselves, but were a number of laps behind the two leaders and at no time threatened them.

Only one accident marred the day. Just before the end of the contest as Galvin was taking a curve at high speed his car skidded, swung about and rolled into the fence on the inner side of the track. Both Galvin and his mechanician were thrown out on the track but neither suffered serious injury.

Twenty-one cars started. The management announced 100,000 persons witnessed the contest.

Sporting Comment

Little Bittle wouldn't care if all the south-paws in the league were freighted off to Klondike. In six attempts at the plate, he managed to lift a half-dozen chinchy pops.

Northern, Frierson and Lee form an outer defense that is still able to bust the ball in the pinches, and cover its share of territory. None of them spring chickens, either.

Six two-baggers is enough to win any ordinary ball game, yet they weren't much use to the Navs. Newnam's gang got four of the two-ply knocks, mixed with innumerable singles, and topped off by a homer.

Dolly Stark breezed in with a rush yesterday as Bronch second sacker. He knocked in the winning run, and pilfered four bases, showing that he still retains his youthful elasticity. Bet every chaw of finecut tasted good to Pop.

Mullins found himself in a hole in the seventh which seemed rather tight to him, although he was enjoying a juicy lead. And a glance at the scoreboard, showing Shreveport's big 7 in the same inning didn't improve his nerves.

"Win your own game, Eddie," screamed some leather-lunged bleacher-god as Donalds stepped to the plate in the sixth, his team nine runs behind, and two pals on the paths. Eddie promptly obliged with a rousing double to left, and cut the lead down to seven.

Grim old Pat can still tell them all how to take those soaring twisters that rise about first base. He gathered in three difficult chances yesterday, first rushing in to snatch a mean one almost out of Allen's glove, and then backfooting it to right field to corral an altitude breaker.

Ray Morton sent thirteen of Connie Mack's young hopefuls back to the bench yesterday looking for the holes in their bats. Incidentally, he hung up a rag for the other Ban Johnson flingers to shoot at. The Indians look fit to lope down the last stretch without needing much second wind.

Wild Bill Donovan take a few kind words of advice and sent Al Walters in there regularly. Nunamaker has been catching lately, result, the Yankees are losing. No reflections on the big fellow, but he just can't make them win. The dimunitive one sliding out his trousers on the bench has that all-fired aggressiveness that makes a mediocre ball club look like a million dollars.

That old worm was bound to turn. Here the aged Buffs go and loose three straight to the now-respectable Giants, and ride into the midst of a happy Brazos crowd out for a good time. What do they do but unbottle all of their compressed base hits on a couple of unsuspecting pitchers, disappoint a huge Sunday crowd, and cast generous gobs of gloom everywhere. And that grand old pennant was blowing and curling in all her billowy beauty, too.

Fitzpatrick's Place on Democratic Committee Unfilled

Frank M. Fitzpatrick's successor as secretary of the McLennan county democratic executive committee will probably be named within the next few days, before the meeting of the committee on June 19. Mr. Fitzpatrick has tendered his formal resignation to Chairman H. E. Brown of Crawford, and has announced himself as a candidate for flotorial representative of the Sixty-third district, which includes McLennan, Falls and Limestone counties. Mr. Fitzpatrick's work as secretary of the committee has been very popular and his devotion to this public service has elicited many compliments from those who have had occasion to know of his work.

The committee will meet on June 19 to assess the amount each candidate shall pay. June 17 is the time limit for the county candidates to secure places on the ticket.

WEEKLY COTTON REVIEW.

New Orleans, June 11.—While the cotton market stood at the advance throughout last week no very important gains were scored and the close was at a net rise of 21 to 29 points. The highest prices were reached on Thursday when the trading months were 26 to 33 points above the previous week's close.

Bullish feeling was stimulated by the better feeling in the spot department where it claimed that the recent wide decline in ocean freight rates had stimulatd the export demand. Shipments to foreign ports last week from all United States ports were 133,986 bales against 130,807 the previous week and 113,869 the same week last year.

Bearish traders were encouraged by the favorable weather over the belt and the appearance of the first bale of the new crop in Texas on June 8, a new record date.

During this week the trade will watch carefully for further developments in the spot situation.

MULLINS GETS BY LUCKILY

Navigators Slam Many Extra-Base Wallops But Lead Too Big to Overcome.

The worm turned yesterday. Houston, fresh from three straight defeats at the hands of the Dallas Giants, not only took a fall out of the Champs, but they made the fall decidedly hard. In two different innings the Buffs bunched hits off two Waco pitchers, the Navs threw in a few boots and wild heaves for good measure and the unsteady Mullins finished the game behind a breastworks the Navs couldn't see over. The score was 11 to 5 and the game was just as bad as it sounds.

An odd perversity seems to be following the local club in the Sunday games. A lot of the fans who work during the week and get to see but one game are unable to figure out how the team ever wins. Not only are the pitchers who work in the Sunday games unsteady and liberal with hits, but the club looks bad both at bat and in the field. Batters who break up games all week with their war clubs pop up or strike out with alarming regularity on Sunday. In fact, the Navs fall a long way short of being a Sunday ball club, and maybe it's just as well, except for the disappointment to the Sunday fans.

Red Causey started the game yesterday. He wasn't there with anything that bothered the Buffs. He was wild and when he fell back on his groove they hit it hard and in spots where Navs weren't. The first of these hits was made by Northen in the second inning—a long two-bagger to right center. Citrano sacrificed and Tullos registered the first run with a clean single over short.

Red managed to stall off Buff challenges in the third and fourth, but in the fifth, after Conwell had flagged a line drive by Allen, Mullen hit safely to right. Lee walked. Dodd hit the first ball pitched for a two-bagger, scoring Mullen. Frierson singled, scoring Lee. Hardy then derricked Causey and sent in Donalds, who took up the burden of box work with one out and first and third occupied. Eddie promptly got two strikes on Newnam, but the Buff foreman caught a low one on the end of his bat and put it down in the left-field corner, scoring Dodd. Northen filed out to deep right, sending Frierson in with the fourth run of the inning. Citrano retired the side by grounding out to Tanner.

The sixth inning was even worse than the fifth. Tullos and Allen singled in succession. Mullen popped up in attempting to bunt. Singles by Lee and Dodd were followed by a safe bunt by Frierson. The Nav defense crumpled under this broadside of hits and when Newnam grounded to Tanner the ball went through him. Not only that, but when it rolled out to Bittle the left-fielder took an extra kick at it. Then Northen hit to Malmquist and he made a bad throw to Tanner at second. During the bombardment and the blow-up five runs crossed the plate. The Navs managed to keep from becoming a joke by retiring the side on a fast double.

The extra Buff run came in the last inning when Hub Northen bumped the ball over the right-field fence.

In the meantime, after the fifth, Mullen was in a bit of trouble, in spite of his big lead. He went fine until he got nine runs to work behind, then he went wild. The locals in the last four innings made nine hits, five of them doubles. In two different innings they had three men left on bases, but every time it looked as it an old-time rally was coming up, the chance went glimmering by the pop-up route. This wasn't all due to good pitching by Mullins, either.

During the seventh and ninth, Mullins and his team were both nervous, but the handicap was too heavy.

With one down in the sixth, Kuhn doubled. Mullins walked Malmquist to get to Donalds, who doubled to right, scoring both.

An error, a two-bagger by Tanner and Kuhn's walk filled the bases with two down in the seventh, but the best Wohlleben could do was a drive which Newnam was able to handle.

Conwell and James doubled in succession in the ninth and Dodd's error let Kuhn on and Conwell score. Wohlleben was walked and James scored on Mal's sacrifice fly to center. Grubb went in as a pinch hitter for Donalds and singled, but Bittle ended the game by fouling out to Allen. The score:

Stark Cuts Up in Debut for Broncs

Fort Worth, Texas, June 11.—The Fort Worth Panthers, who have not won a Sunday game this season, lost a grueling affair here to San Antonio in the eleventh inning, 3 to 4. Errors and poor judgment on bases by the locals aided San Antonio to win. Dolly Stark, playing his first game with the visitors, batted in the winning run. He stole four bases. The score:

Bad Weather Hurts Big League Clubs

New York, June 11.—Postponements and games played ran close races in the National and American leagues during the past week. Bad weather played havoc with the playing schedules in both organizations. Eleven games played and thirteen postponements was the record in the national. The American had slightly better luck with sixteen games played and twelve postponements. There were no games at all in the National on Thursday and Friday.

As a result of the unfavorable weather conditions the standings in the two leagues show hardly any change from those of a week ago. The Chicago National league team was the only one in the two leagues to change its position materially, the Cubs advancing from seventh to fifth place.

In the National league the eastern and western teams were evenly matched. The Giants struck a snag in the Polo grounds. They lost the series to Cincinnati and lost the only game played in the Pittsburg series. The teams ended the week bunched closely, slightly more than 136 points separating St. Louis, in last place, from Brooklyn, in first place.

St. Louis, in the American league, ran its string of victories up to six before it was defeated Saturday by Boston.

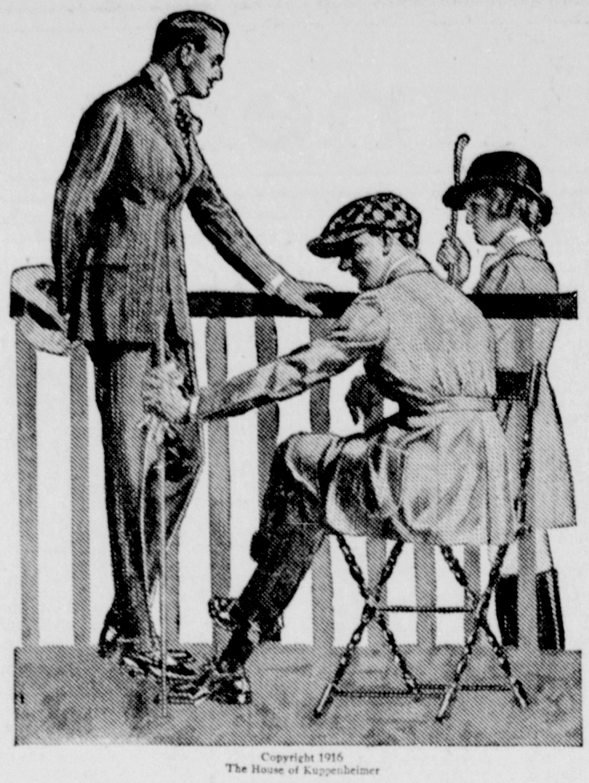

Detroit won all four games played including three straight from Washington. The Senators' victory over Cleveland Friday was their first since May 27.

The week's play brought no change in the American league standing. Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis were the only teams to win more games than they lost.

CHAMPION PLAYS TOMORROW.

Philadelphia, June 11.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the national singles champion, will defend her title in the final round of the women's national tennis tournament tomorrow on the courts of the Philadelphia Cricket club. Her opponent will be Mrs. Edward Raymond of New York, former national champion, who won her way through the tournament here last week in an impressive manner.

HEMINGWAY TO SAN ANTONIO.

Memphis, June 11.—Announcement was made tonight that Leonard Dobard, former Mobile infielder, had been signed by the Memphis Southern club and Ed Hemingway, whom Dobard will replace had been sold to San Antonio of the Texas league.

Dario Resta Wins Big Speedway Event

Chicago, June 11.—Dario Resta today won the second annual speedway automobile derby race here, covering the 300 miles in three hours, two minutes and thirty-one seconds, an average speed of 98.8 miles an hour. His time was fifty seconds faster than he established for the same distance in last year's race here. Ralph DePalma was second, Christsen third, Vail fourth and O'Donnell fifth. The race was the most closely contested in which DePalma and Resta ever competed, the two drivers keeping their machines almost together and alternated in holding the leaders until two laps from the finish when DePalma met with engine trouble, costing him a possible victory.

The other cars that remained to the end of the contest had a close race among themselves, but were a number of laps behind the two leaders and at no time threatened them.

Only one accident marred the day. Just before the end of the contest as Galvin was taking a curve at high speed his car skidded, swung about and rolled into the fence on the inner side of the track. Both Galvin and his mechanician were thrown out on the track but neither suffered serious injury.

Twenty-one cars started. The management announced 100,000 persons witnessed the contest.

Sporting Comment

Little Bittle wouldn't care if all the south-paws in the league were freighted off to Klondike. In six attempts at the plate, he managed to lift a half-dozen chinchy pops.

Northern, Frierson and Lee form an outer defense that is still able to bust the ball in the pinches, and cover its share of territory. None of them spring chickens, either.

Six two-baggers is enough to win any ordinary ball game, yet they weren't much use to the Navs. Newnam's gang got four of the two-ply knocks, mixed with innumerable singles, and topped off by a homer.

Dolly Stark breezed in with a rush yesterday as Bronch second sacker. He knocked in the winning run, and pilfered four bases, showing that he still retains his youthful elasticity. Bet every chaw of finecut tasted good to Pop.

Mullins found himself in a hole in the seventh which seemed rather tight to him, although he was enjoying a juicy lead. And a glance at the scoreboard, showing Shreveport's big 7 in the same inning didn't improve his nerves.

"Win your own game, Eddie," screamed some leather-lunged bleacher-god as Donalds stepped to the plate in the sixth, his team nine runs behind, and two pals on the paths. Eddie promptly obliged with a rousing double to left, and cut the lead down to seven.

Grim old Pat can still tell them all how to take those soaring twisters that rise about first base. He gathered in three difficult chances yesterday, first rushing in to snatch a mean one almost out of Allen's glove, and then backfooting it to right field to corral an altitude breaker.

Ray Morton sent thirteen of Connie Mack's young hopefuls back to the bench yesterday looking for the holes in their bats. Incidentally, he hung up a rag for the other Ban Johnson flingers to shoot at. The Indians look fit to lope down the last stretch without needing much second wind.

Wild Bill Donovan take a few kind words of advice and sent Al Walters in there regularly. Nunamaker has been catching lately, result, the Yankees are losing. No reflections on the big fellow, but he just can't make them win. The dimunitive one sliding out his trousers on the bench has that all-fired aggressiveness that makes a mediocre ball club look like a million dollars.

That old worm was bound to turn. Here the aged Buffs go and loose three straight to the now-respectable Giants, and ride into the midst of a happy Brazos crowd out for a good time. What do they do but unbottle all of their compressed base hits on a couple of unsuspecting pitchers, disappoint a huge Sunday crowd, and cast generous gobs of gloom everywhere. And that grand old pennant was blowing and curling in all her billowy beauty, too.

Mr. Hirschberg Unable to Speak at Retail Merchants' Ass'n.

Sol Hirschberg was forced, on account of business, to forego his trip to San Antonio tomorrow, where he was to have delivered an address before the convention of Retail Merchants on "Excessive Cost of Retail Delivery." Mr. Hirschberg stated that this convention was for the retail grocer, butcher, or dry goods merchants. It is a coming together of the men in the same branches of the world's work who have to meet the same difficulties, and fight the same problems.

"The Excessive Cost of Retail Delivery," according to Mr. Hirschberg, is one of those problems that stares the merchant in the face and is a source of much expense and worry. The great fight of the merchant is to continually combat the rising cost, which sharpens competition and increases the overhead expense. The thing that all strive for is to reduce the costs to a minimum.

The same abuses that are a source of annoyance and expense to all retailers are things that can be remedied by the proper steps of co-operation. Mr. Hirschberg regrets his inability to deliver the lecture, as he says it is a very interesting study, and can be pursued with much advantage. There was a party to leave Waco last night to attend the convention.

T. P. & L. and City Trying to Compromise White Way Contract

The white way matter is being put into form for another "try" at getting together, the delay having been caused by failure of the city authorities and the Texas Power and Light company to agree on the price of certain features, on maintenance features and a few details.

Manager F. L. Booth of the Texas Power and Light company is now working on the form of an agreement or contract which will be submitted to the city authorities as soon as it shall have been completed, and it is his intention to rush the matter as much as possible. He states to Mayor John Dollins that the new contract will embody the wishes of the electric light people, and if this be acceptable to the city, then the contract can be closed, the white way constructed and put into operation.

The matter has been hanging fire some time, but it is either on the road to consummation or defeat at an early date, and it is hoped that the matter will be arranged all right between the city and the electric light people.

Central Committee on Cotton Palace Fund Will Work Today

The work of the central committee of the Cotton Palace guarantee fund will begin again today. The teams have finished their work, but there still remain several hundred dollars to collect to complete the $15,000. The money is expected to be raised in short time, as many of the men who have promised to subscribe to the fund, and who were out of the city last week, have returned.

Teams Nos. 3, 4 and 6 were especially efficient in raising their portion of the $15,000. In all, six teams were employed in the campaign, which was over a period of three and one-half days.

TO RAISE ONE MILLION FOR FARM COLONY

WACO IDEA OF A GREAT FARM COMMUNITY FOR THE JEWS IS LAUNCHED IN THIS CITY BY B'NAI B'RITH—PROMINENT MEN SPEAK AT MEETING.

The Farm-City plan, spoken of as "the Waco idea," was formally launched at an executive meeting of the trustees of the grand lodge, District No. 7, Independent Order of B'nai B'rith held at the Raleigh hotel yesterday. To carry out this gigantic scheme of a Jewish colony of such proportion as to start a movement from the city to the country will require an initial investment of approximately one million dollars. Because Dr. I. Warsaw, rabbi of Temple Rodef Sholom, and Louey Migel are given credit for originating the idea and giving it impetus and because it was clearly indicated yesterday that the will of the board of trustees is that the colony-city should be established in Texas, Waco is deeply concerned in the decision of the board and will look forward with keen interest to the progress of the plans.

DR. I. WARSAW

Dr. Warsaw is active secretary of the board and a moving spirit in the promotion of the million dollar colony.

An open meeting was held in the Temple last night and several of the prominent leaders of the B'nai B'rith order were speakers. These addresses emphasized the point that the Farm-City plan would rank as one of the great undertakings of the order, which has to its credit several philanthropic and social service institutions that rank well among the most beneficial of the nation.

It was decided by the trustees yesterday to begin at once a campaign for one million dollars, and $6,000 was appropriated for the first expenses of the campaign to raise the big amount. It is the plan to work the Farm-City on the basis of a great corporation. Shares will be sold at cost and it is the plan of the committee in charge to interest the Jewish capitalists of the east, such men as Jacob Schiff.

Following are the members of the board which determined on the launching of the plan: L. Migel, of Waco, chairman of the board; Rabbi I. Warsaw, vice chairman and secreary. The other members are I. Levy, Oklahoma City; A. Bernstein, Shreveport; Ion. N. Cohen, Nashville; A. Goldstein, Greenville, Miss.; Dan Daniels, Little Rock; Leon Schwartz, Mobile; J. S. Westheimer, Houston; Rabbi George Fox, Fort Worth; A. Sheline Dallas; Rabbi H. Cohen, Galveston, and Henry Half, San Antonio.

Besides the distinguished speakers from out of the state at the evening meeting in behalf of the colony plan, Lieutenant Governor W. P. Hobby, represented the state and W. W. Naman spoke for Waco. After the eloquent addresses, the meeting at the Temple adjourned and a reception was tendered the visitors at the Progress club rooms, corner Eighth and Austin streets. D. E. Hirshfield presided over the evening meeting.

LOUEY MIGEL

As the first speaker of the evening meeting, W. W. Naman declared that at last the B'nai B'rith of Texas had something which was worthy of their greatest efforts, something that they could get behind. He expressed the gratification of Waco that this city had been chosen for the presentation of the scheme that the birth of the idea and the beginning of the campaign had been launched here. He also expressed pleasure at the presence of the B'nai B'rith leaders.

HOBBY SAYS PLAN TACKLES GREAT PROBLEM.

"The Farm-City plan strikes at the heart of a vital problem of the day, that of making the farm profitable and the rural life pleasant," said Lieutenant Governor Hobby. He declared that he had been interested in the plan from the very first, time that he had heard it, and that he was glad to greet the leaders in the name of the state of Texas. Because the destiny of Texas is dependent upon agriculture he insisted that the development of the plan would not only be a signal achievement for the Jews but that it would be a benefaction for all the people of the state. The representative of the governor pledged the cooperation of all the people, saying that Texas was for the Farm-City idea and that there was plenty of room in the Lone Star State to take care of the colony and its growth through the years.

"Now is a particularly opportune time for the launching of such a project, because America is destined soon to take a new place in the eyes of the world," said Mr. Hobby. He looks to a decided trade revival and stimulation of manufacturing and better market for agricultural products to the world.

He thought that it was very appropriate that Waco was selected as the place for holding the meeting on the farm colony movement, because it was the heart of an agricultural country second to none, and he expressed the hope that the colony would be located near this city resulting in Waco becoming the leading agricultural city of the land. His address was received with applause.

NASHVILLE LEADER MAKES ADDRESS.

Hon. N. Cohen of Nashville, ex-president of the grand lodge of the seventh division, responded in behalf of the visiting leaders of the B'nai B'rith. This order is essential one of "service," he explained. He said that no people felt more devoted to their country more than the Jew and said that no organization more consistently fostered American patriotism than does the B'nai B'rith.

Telling of what the order had done in the way of asylums for the indigent, hospitals for the sick and colonies for the tuberculosis patients, both Jew and Gentile, Mr. Cohen said that the next great undertaking on the program of service was that of the farm colony.

Eloquently he explained that the Jew had originally been a tiller of the soil but that through dreary epochs in history he had gotten away from this and had been driven to become a dweller in cities. He declared that this Farm-City plan would be a revelation to the world that the Jew can be more than a successful tradesman or a member of the learned profession.

He expressed his pleasure at being in Waco on the day such an idea had been launched into a campaign and paid a high tribute to the genius of Dr. Warsaw and to Mr. Migel.

"This will prove one of the broadest and most monumental movements of the day," he concluded.

"THERE ARE NO HYPHENATED JEWS."

When President A. Bernstein of Shreveport, president of the district, declared that there "are no hyphenated Jews—they are all Americans," he was greeted by an outburst of approbation. "We are distinctly Americans in patriotism and distinctly Jews in religion," said Mr. Bernstein.

Speaking of the ideals of the B'nai B'rith, the president said that while the charities of the order were on a large scale that these were not the chief ideals of the organization. This main aim was the development of character and the inspiration of personal ideals. He insisted that the Farm-City plan offered great opportunities for social service and the cultivation of fine social ties, ideals and rugged simplicity in living.

He spoke also of the ideal of culture and intellectuality. Broadly speaking, he explained that the ideals of the order could be summed up as striving for the development of the social, intellectual and cultural life of the Jews.

A proper understanding of the mission of the Jews was an essential fact, insisted Mr. Bernstein. He reviewed eloquently the part played by the three basal races in civilization: The Greek for art and learning, the Roman for physical fitness, and the Jew for religion—the greatest of the trio being the contribution of religion, he said. The Jew has a peculiar mission, one of service and propagation of ideals, inherited from the richest traditions of history, he emphasized.

Speaking for the Jewish race, Mr. Bernstein said that the Jew wished to be put just where he individually deserved as a citizen. He declared that the singling out of the Jew for invidious comparison, was unjust and resented by the order.

Music during the speakers' program was furnished by Mrs. P. Jack Sanger, vocal, and Mrs. Alex Sanger, violin. After the adjournment of the meeting, the assembly reconvened at the Progress club rooms for music and refreshments.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR HOBBY

Representing the state, Mr. Hobby assured the promoters of the big Jewish plan a hearty reception from all Texas.

Practically All the Grain of the County Has Been Cut

Doubtless the uplands cannot show quite as good a record, but the lowlands lying up and down the Brazos river, out a considerable distance on either side, show that the grain has been cut to a large extent.

In a ride of fifty miles yesterday two men who went to Kosse from Waco saw only two fields of grain which had not been cut. Practically all the grain had been safely cut and stored away in shocks, awaiting the coming of the threshers to separate the heavy grain from the straw.

Practically all the fields seen were clean, there being but few weeds, and the crops appeared to be growing off nicely. The ride taken by the parties referred to took them to Harrison, Riesel, Perry, Marlin, Reagan and Kosse, the return trip having been over the same route.

DR. I. WARSAW

Dr. Warsaw is active secretary of the board and a moving spirit in the promotion of the million dollar colony.

An open meeting was held in the Temple last night and several of the prominent leaders of the B'nai B'rith order were speakers. These addresses emphasized the point that the Farm-City plan would rank as one of the great undertakings of the order, which has to its credit several philanthropic and social service institutions that rank well among the most beneficial of the nation.

It was decided by the trustees yesterday to begin at once a campaign for one million dollars, and $6,000 was appropriated for the first expenses of the campaign to raise the big amount. It is the plan to work the Farm-City on the basis of a great corporation. Shares will be sold at cost and it is the plan of the committee in charge to interest the Jewish capitalists of the east, such men as Jacob Schiff.

Following are the members of the board which determined on the launching of the plan: L. Migel, of Waco, chairman of the board; Rabbi I. Warsaw, vice chairman and secreary. The other members are I. Levy, Oklahoma City; A. Bernstein, Shreveport; Hon. N. Cohen, Nashville; A. Goldstein, Greenville, Miss.; Dan Daniels, Little Rock; Leon Schwartz, Mobile; J. S. Westheimer, Houston; Rabbi George Fox, Fort Worth; A. Sheline Dallas; Rabbi H. Cohen, Galveston, and Henry Half, San Antonio.

Besides the distinguished speakers from out of the state at the evening meeting in behalf of the colony plan, Lieutenant Governor W. P. Hobby, represented the state and W. W. Naman spoke for Waco. After the eloquent addresses, the meeting at the Temple adjourned and a reception was tendered the visitors at the Progress club rooms, corner Eighth and Austin streets. D. E. Hirshfield presided over the evening meeting.

LOUEY MIGEL

As the first speaker of the evening meeting, W. W. Naman declared that at last the B'nai B'rith of Texas had something which was worthy of their greatest efforts, something that they could get behind. He expressed the gratification of Waco that this city had been chosen for the presentation of the scheme that the birth of the idea and the beginning of the campaign had been launched here. He also expressed pleasure at the presence of the B'nai B'rith leaders.

HOBBY SAYS PLAN TACKLES GREAT PROBLEM.

"The Farm-City plan strikes at the heart of a vital problem of the day, that of making the farm profitable and the rural life pleasant," said Lieutenant Governor Hobby. He declared that he had been interested in the plan from the very first time that he had heard it, and that he was glad to greet the leaders in the name of the state of Texas. Because the destiny of Texas is dependent upon agriculture he insisted that the development of the plan would not only be a signal achievement for the Jews but that it would be a benefaction for all the people of the state. The representative of the governor pledged the cooperation of all the people, saying that Texas was for the Farm-City idea and that there was plenty of room in the Lone Star State to take care of the colony and its growth through the years.

"Now is a particularly opportune time for the launching of such a project, because America is destined soon to take a new place in the eyes of the world," said Mr. Hobby. He looks to a decided trade revival and stimulation of manufacturing and better market for agricultural products to the world.

He thought that it was very appropriate that Waco was selected as the place for holding the meeting on the farm colony movement, because it was the heart of an agricultural country second to none, and he expressed the hope that the colony would be located near this city resulting in Waco becoming the leading agricultural city of the land. His address was received with applause.

NASHVILLE LEADER MAKES ADDRESS.

Hon. N. Cohen of Nashville, ex-president of the grand lodge of the seventh division, responded in behalf of the visiting leaders of the B'nai B'rith. This order is essential one of "service," he explained. He said that no people felt more devoted to their country more than the Jew and said that no organization more consistently fostered American patriotism than does the B'nai B'rith.

Telling of what the order had done in the way of asylums for the indigent, hospitals for the sick and colonies for the tuberculosis patients, both Jew and Gentile, Mr. Cohen said that the next great undertaking on the program of service was that of the farm colony.

Eloquently he explained that the Jew had originally been a tiller of the soil but that through dreary epochs in history he had gotten away from this and had been driven to become a dweller in cities. He declared that this Farm-City plan would be a revelation to the world that the Jew can be more than a successful tradesman or a member of the learned profession.

He expressed his pleasure at being in Waco on the day such an idea had been launched into a campaign and paid a high tribute to the genius of Dr. Warsaw and to Mr. Migel.

"This will prove one of the broadest and most monumental movements of the day," he concluded.

"THERE ARE NO HYPHENATED JEWS."

When President A. Bernstein of Shreveport, president of the district, declared that there "are no hyphenated Jews—they are all Americans," he was greeted by an outburst of approbation. "We are distinctly Americans in patriotism and distinctly Jews in religion," said Mr. Bernstein.

Speaking of the ideals of the B'nai B'rith, the president said that while the charities of the order were on a large scale that these were not the chief ideals of the organization. This main aim was the development of character and the inspiration of personal ideals. He insisted that the Farm-City plan offered great opportunities for social service and the cultivation of fine social ties, ideals and rugged simplicity in living.

He spoke also of the ideal of culture and intellectuality. Broadly speaking, he explained that the ideals of the order could be summed up as striving for the development of the social, intellectual and cultural life of the Jews.

A proper understanding of the mission of the Jews was an essential fact, insisted Mr. Bernstein. He reviewed eloquently the part played by the three basal races in civilization: The Greek for art and learning, the Roman for physical fitness, and the Jew for religion—the greatest of the trio being the contribution of religion, he said. The Jew has a peculiar mission, one of service and propagation of ideals, inherited from the richest traditions of history, he emphasized.

Speaking for the Jewish race, Mr. Bernstein said that the Jew wished to be put just where he individually deserved as a citizen. He declared that the singling out of the Jew for invidious comparison, was unjust and resented by the order.

Music during the speakers' program was furnished by Mrs. P. Jack Sanger, vocal, and Mrs. Alex Sanger, violin. After the adjournment of the meeting, the assembly reconvened at the Progress club rooms for music and refreshments.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR HOBBY

Representing the state, Mr. Hobby assured the promoters of the big Jewish plan a hearty reception from all Texas.

Practically All the Grain of the County Has Been Cut

Doubtless the uplands cannot show quite as good a record, but the lowlands lying up and down the Brazos river, out a considerable distance on either side, show that the grain has been cut to a large extent.

In a ride of fifty miles yesterday two men who went to Kosse from Waco saw only two fields of grain which had not been cut. Practically all the grain had been safely cut and stored away in shocks, awaiting the coming of the threshers to separate the heavy grain from the straw.

Practically all the fields seen were clean, there being but few weeds, and the crops appeared to be growing off nicely. The ride taken by the parties referred to took them to Harrison, Riesel, Perry, Marlin, Reagan and Kosse, the return trip having been over the same route.
